The motion was agreed to.

BATHURST GAS BILL.

On the motion of Mr. DRIVER, the Bathurst Gas Bill was read a third time and passed, and an order was made for its transmission to the Legislative Council for its concurrence.

BORDER DUTIES CONVENTION BILL.

Mr. FIDDINGTON moved,—"That the report of the committee on the Border Duties Convention Bill be adopted."

Mr. PARKES moved as an amendment,—"That the bill be recommitted, with the view of making amendments in the first, second, fourth, and fifth clauses." These amendments, he said, were, with one exception, purely verbal. For example, he wished in the first clause to insert the words "or of either of such boundaries," after the words "South Australia," in order to make the meaning, beyond all doubt of that character, that it would enable the Government to make a convention with South Australia and Victoria, or with either colony separately. The amendments in the other clauses were to the same effect. The only amendment which was of a substantive character was in the second clause, and even that could scarcely be considered more than verbal—it was the insertion, in the 27th line of the words "or exported from," after the words "imported into."

The question—"That the Speaker leave the chair, and the House resolve itself into committee for the further consideration of the bill,"—was agreed to on the following division:—

Ayes, 30.
Mr. Parkes	Mr. M'Laurin	Mr. Jacob
Butler	Bennett	Macleay
Burrell	Grahame	Cunneen
Piddington	Hill	Moses
Sutherland	Neale	Wearne
Jones	Tunks	Stewart
Lloyd	De Salis	Driver
Hurley (C. C.)	Greville	Lackey
Hurley (Nar.)	Booth	Watson
S. C. Brown	Baker	Fitzpatrick
		Tellers.

Noes, 6.
Mr. Lord	Mr. J. S. Smith	Mr. Wren
Raphael	Buchanan	Lucas
		Tellers.

The House having resolved itself into committee,

Mr. PARKES moved the omission of the word "of" in the 15th line, and the insertion of the words "or of either of such boundaries," after the words "South Australia."

Both amendments were agreed to.

Mr. PARKES moved the omission of the word "shall" in the 21st line, second clause, and the insertion of the word "may." This alteration, he said, was necessary in the event of an agreement being made for a lump sum.

On the amendment being put from the chair, Mr. RAPHAEL demanded a division, and expressed his determination to call for a division on every amendment.

The committee divided. Ayes, 30; noes, 3—Mr. Raphael, Mr. J. S. Smith, and Mr. Buchanan voting against the amendments.

Mr. PARKES moved a further amendment in line twenty-five of clause 2, by the insertion of the words "or exported from," after the words "imported into."

Mr. ARNOLD wanted to know what object was to be secured by taking an account of the exports from this colony.

Mr. PARKES said it was always intended by this bill to take an account of the exports as well as the imports. And it occurred to him, more especially after the remark of the hon. member for the Paterson, that it would place the matter beyond doubt if the words which he proposed were added. As to the insure an account being taken of the trade in both directions. Because without such an account it would not be very easy to come to a just decision as to the amount to which this colony would be entitled.

Mr. RAPHAEL thought the intention of the bill was to stuey the interests of Victoria. He could not see for the life of him what the object of the clause was, and trusted it would not be agreed to.

Mr LUCAS said he would like to draw hon. members' attention to the effect of the amendment. We should take into consideration that the duty in Victoria was 20 per cent., and that in New South Wales 5 per cent., and by taking an account as proposed in the bill Victoria would charge 20 per cent. on everything going over the border to their colony, while we would charge only 5 per cent. upon goods coming to our colony from Victoria. Consequently, if £300,000 worth of goods went from this colony into Victoria, they would pay 20 per cent., or, in other words, [equal to £400,000 worth of goods coming from Victoria into our colony. He thought by this system of taking an account instead of our having something to draw from Victoria we should show upon the wrong side of the ledger. (Hear, hear.) He thought we should deal with this in a very different manner altogether, and that goods coming across the border should pay the same duty. [Mr. RAPHAEL: Hear, hear.] The only satisfactory mode of dealing with the question was to collect the duties, and then we should not be doing an injustice to 450,000 of our community to give facilities for the people on our border who had great facilities already. It would be better to get the receipts from Victoria of the amounts they paid, and recoup them out of the Treasury rather than go into a system of account. It was clearly shown by the returns of revenue coming across the Border for the last four months that only £1000 had been received, or £3000 for the year, and would it not be better to allow the Victorian Government to obtain receipts for duty paid on goods going into their colony over the Border, and recoup them from Sydney because it was very clear to him if we took this account, by a little not enuring we should receive very little or none at all.

Mr. STEWART said it seemed to him the insertion of the words proposed would alter the whole character of the bill. (Hear, hear.) At the present moment we had authority given to take an account of goods imported into New South Wales, but by inserting these words we were bound to take an account of goods crossing into Victoria. (Hear, hear.) No doubt it was for the purpose of deducting the amount paid to New South Wales, but he should certainly vote against it. It had been studiously kept in the dark that by taking an account the amount was to be deducted from the amount due to New South Wales. He hoped the committee would not vote for the amendment.

Mr. TUNKS said it appeard that the objections taken were merely absurdities. All that the clause professed to do was to enable the Government to take a proper account—

Mr. PARKES: A most correct and complete account.

Mr. TUNKS said the accounts would not affect the Government or the country. (Hear, hear.) The principle of the bill had been fully discussed on the second reading, and it was now only necessary to make it as perfect as possible. We wanted to know, for one thing, what the trade was in regard to this matter, and what the statistics might be in the future.

Mr. LUCAS said the bill was for the purpose of taking an account to form the basis of an arrangement with Victoria, and to take an account of goods across the Border, and he throught if these words were inserted, instead of getting £66,000 we should only get £40,000.

Mr. JACOB thought the principle of striking a balance, which had always been the principle of treaties, seemed to strike hon. members by surprise. It occurred to him that the second clause would have to be further amended, for he did not think power was given to suspend the law during the preliminary agreement.

Mr. PARKES: Yes, by the 7th clause.

Mr. JACOB: Yes, but that does not give power to suspend the law during the preliminary agreement.

Mr. PARKES said he was quite sure the hon. member for Canterbury, if he reflected for a moment, would see that the proposed amendment would not in any way affect the bill, except to enable the Government to take a more complete account of the trade across the Border, because it did not follow that any result would take place. The clause only enabled the Government to take an account, and it depended upon the agreement formed under this bill as to what payment should be made to New South Wales. The clause was to enable the Government to take an account, and to take it in the most satisfactory and explicit manner. It was always contemplated that an account of the trade should be taken both ways. The account of imports into the colony without the exports out of the colony would be a one-sided account, and would leave the Government very much in the dark as to the trade. This simply enacted in explicit language that an account should be taken in both directions.

Mr. ARNOLD thought we had great reason to complain of an amendment of this kind, as contemplated by the Government, without due notice being given to the House with regard to it. (Hear, hear.) If this amendment involved nothing more than was explained by a gentleman who supported it that the Government were to gratify their curiosity in regard to the amount exported from this colony, and that no consequences were to follow in the carrying out the arrangements between the two colonies, there could be no objection to the insertion of this clause. But if he (Mr. Arnold) understood the Hon. Colonial Secretary aright the object of the amendment involved the whole question, which he (Mr. Arnold) put at issue the night when he explained his views and argued against the amendment by which the duties payable in the Victorian Government on the imports to that colony from this were to be a set-off to the amount of duties payable to this Government. (Hear, hear.) On that occasion it seemed to him he had accomplished all he desired in regard to the Government acceding to the proposal made by the hon. member for West Macquarie (Mr. Webb), whose object was made clear enough, because he stated as explicitly as possible that he was taking issue upon that particular amendment as to whether the Government should be allowed to make that retrait. If the Government desired to act ingenuously with the House and the country, they should have made a stand, by stating what was their intention, and put it to the committee whether they would sanction the amendment. But the hon. Colonial Secretary had not done anything of the kind, but simply stated there would be no objection. He deprecated the discussion of matter that had been discussed, he said, over and over again, but he (Mr. Arnold) denied it had been discussed over and over again. (Hear, hear.) The hon Colonial Secretary had not given an opportunity to discuss the matter, nor had he taken the opinion of the House upon it. The whole thing was involved in mystery and doubt. If the amendment was intended to lead to any result whatever, he thought nothing more was required than a declaration from the hon Colonial Secretary that that was the intention. He had not been able to ascertain the intention of the Government in proposing the new amendment. He was not going to occupy the House again with the arguments in regard to this balance, but he believed, from what he had heard, that hon. members who had spoken upon the question since did not perceive the difference between receiving a balance that was due (hear, hear) from Victoria and in receiving the amount of duties which we should collect ourselves under our own tariff. They were always spoken of as one and the same thing. (Hear, hear.) He had shown as conclusively as could be shown that the two things were as different as light and darkness. He had been very unfairly treated in his remarks upon that part of the question. The hon. Colonial Secretary, in a few words in reply, said in a kind of jaunty way, that he was quite willing to give it up, and that he did not care about this word "balance." He thought it not quite fair that the Government, having refused to take issue upon that particular matter, should afterwards insert these words without any notice. Having given up the word "balance," they inserted words which were intended to mean exactly the same thing. But the Government now found that there was no provision whatever for taking any other account than of the duties payable to this country, and therefore it would be impossible to adjust the account in such a way as would interfere with the payment now of the full amount due. Therefore the hon. Colonial Secretary now intended to make it a little clearer, and now proposed to take an account of the amount payable on imports and exports. Then when the convention was made and it was found that we were losing gradually more and more largely by this arrangement, and the Government were reproached by the country, they would be told that the agreement was made in accordance with the intention of Parliament. Upon the insertion of that provision alone it seemed to him that the justification of the Government would almost entirely depend. He thought he had been treated very unfairly by the hon. Colonial Secretary and by the newspaper Press of the colony. The Colonial Secretary had spoken of his arguments the other night which were entirely and solely directed against the acceptance of this balance as if he had been re-arguing the expediency of making an agreement. He had done nothing of the kind. All that he argued was that they ought to accept no smaller sum from the neighbouring colony than was actually collected, and that they ought not to admit as a set-off the amount of duties leviable on exports. If he had been inclined to extend his arguments to the expediency of making an agreement, he should have occupied the House for a much longer time than he did. Nor would he have overlooked certain facts which would naturally have suggested themselves. For instance, the contemplated arrangement would give to the traders of Victoria an enormous advantage over our own traders in consequence of the difference of tariffs. Again, the Government had sustained very considerable loss upon the article of opium. In 1868 the duty upon opium under the New South Wales tariff was 20s. per lb., under that of Victoria 10s. According to the Statistical Register, the import of opium seaward into this colony was 26,000 lbs., while in 1869 it was only 9000 lbs., and there came across the Border 11,638 lbs., so that the loss upon this item alone was nearly £12,000; and if hon. members would pursue the inquiry they would find that in that year we actually exported more opium than we imported. So that we imported 12,000 lbs. upon which we got no duty, while we exported a large amount upon which probably a drawback was received. A clever man would have made his fortune upon that one item. He was merely stating these things as samples of the arguments against the general scheme, and to show the House that the other night he had in no way exceeded the right he had to address the committee upon the question then before it. He would not have made these remarks if the Government had appeared to him to be making their proposal in a straightforward manner. A very serious question was involved. If the Government intended to permit this set-off, it was quite clear that they were making an appropriation of public money. If they were authorising the Government of Victoria to collect the duties payable under our tariff, and to pay a portion of those duties into their own treasury, surely that was an appropriation of public money, and on that account it appeared to him the thing would be very objectionable. If the Government in taking an account would distinguish between articles which were liable to duty under both tariffs, and take a separate account of the products of Victoria imported into this country, he should have a very much slighter objection to the arrangement. In that way they would accomplish what nearly every one seemed to think a fair settlement of the question. He heard the hon. Colonial Secretary say that he did not intend to accept less than £60,000, but if the accounts showed a less sum, how would he be justified? He could not help thinking that they were not treated with such plainness and ingenuousness as they ought to be.

Mr. PARKES protested against the hon. member's accusations of disingenuousness. He had stated as distinctly as language could convey it, that the omission of the word "balance" was consequent upon an amendment in another part of the clause. All through these proceedings he had been as straightforward and open as language could make him, and it was rather too bad for the Speaker of the House to endeavour to insinuate that there had been a desire to obtain the bill under misstatements. The amendment simply meant that they should take an account of the Border trade in the most complete manner. It was always intended that an account should be taken of the trade in both directions; an account in one direction only would be most imperfect. If the Government of Victoria would consent to pay the amount of our duties and take no account of their own, it would be the better for us; but he scarcely thought they would do so. Supposing an arrangement were made, the loss to this colony would be very small indeed, because the trade was not of so large a character as had been represented.

Mr. LUCAS said it appeared to him that the more discussion we had upon this bill the clearer it was that it would not pass. He happened to know a firm in Sydney which was about to send a representative to Melbourne to get orders for goods which they proposed to send overland to Victoria. There were certain light goods which they would send over at a cost for carriage of only £15 per ton; and the difference between the New South Wales tariff of 5 per cent. and the Victorian tariff of 15 per cent. would enable the firm to make a clear profit of £200. Was it to be supposed that the Victorian merchants would not send their representatives to Sydney, and so get all their light and valuable goods across the border, finding that by the difference of tariffs they would be able to get their goods so much cheaper than through their own ports. The effect of this would be that if this account were taken all these goods going across would be charged against New South Wales at twenty per cent. He was convinced that if this amendment should pass that we should not have one penny to take from Victoria, as this export trade to that colony would become so large. This House ought never to give the Victorian Government power to take accounts of goods at twenty per cent. that this colony could only reckon at five per cent. This was the worst feature of the measure before the committee. He believed it would be actually injurious to the people on the border. If it did not pass, Victoria must make some arrangement to bring the goods in bond across the river Murray, otherwise her merchants would lose the trade. The Border people would then only have to pay one duty of five per cent. If this bill passed they would have to pay the Victorian duty of twenty per cent. He hoped the House would, even at the eleventh hour, well consider the effect of this measure.

Mr. BOOTH considered that in any account taken of goods crossing and recrossing the border there should be an adjustment of the tariffs of the two colonies. He wanted to know whether the Government proposed to allow Victoria to charge 20 per cent. against us, while we only charged 5 per cent. against them. It appeared to him that we ought to collect our own duties, but that there ought to be free trade in intercolonial products. By the late arrangement the people of the colony paid £2 per head through the Customs-house, while Victoria only paid us at the rate of £1 5s. per head, for our people she supplied with dutiable goods across the border. At present there was a large population springing up on the Victorian border, near Twofold Bay. They were supplied with goods from Twofold Bay, which was thus as much a port for Victoria as for New South Wales. If an adjustment of accounts should take place this colony would have to pay at the rate of 20 per cent. for the duties supplied to this large population. He hoped measures would be taken against this.

Mr. GARRETT said that the hon. member who had just sat down was quite correct in his statement about the supply of a large population on the eastern part of the Victorian boundary line from Bombala. It was only lately that the Border territory had been absolutely defined. A large population on the Victorian Gold fields in that quarter were supplied from Twofold Bay. The Victorian Government had not even a Custom-house officer stationed at the border there to receive the duties. There was only a constable stationed there, and what he did was to stop all dutiable goods; and the owners had to give the man a cheque, which he forwarded to Melbourne. So far as regarded trade and every convenience these border people belonged to New South Wales. Up to last year it is colony had collected the duties; but since the line had been defined it was found they had to be paid to Victoria. As he had said, only one constable was stationed at the dividing line, and carriers were bound to wait on our territory until this constable chose to remit the money to, and got the receipt from Melbourne. He knew that part of the country very well, and he could satisfy the House as to the inconvenience that existed at the present time. The amendment proposed was intended to bolster up that portion of the bill discussed the other night, in which the amount to be paid was founded on the balance of the account. He objected to this, because it threw into the hands of the Victorian Government the power to prevent this colony recovering one penny of what was legitimately due to it. Supposing that colony increased the duties upon wheat, upon oats, upon wine, and all other products of New South Wales, they might extinguish our balance entirely. In the Conference the argument was actually held over the heads of our delegates to bring this colony to its knees. He was not speaking in the interest of a party following. It having been decided that a treaty should be concluded, it was the duty of all parties to see that a fair bargain was made. All the details now under consideration should be considered by hon. members as carefully as if they were making a private bargain. One of the most important details was the question of the account. The bill had already been greatly altered, and there were not eight lines out of ten that were the same as when it was introduced. He maintained that the protectionist doctrines were being adopted in Victoria. The most powerful party were those in favour of protecting agriculture and manufactures; and the result would be that increased duties would be imposed on all our produce crossing the border, and if a treaty were to be framed on the balance of accounts, the balance would soon be against this colony.

Mr. MACINTOSH said the more he considered the bill, the more he felt convinced that it would be of no service to the country. It was not a bill to promote free trade, but a bill to promote the growth of wine, grain, and other articles on the border, and to give the growers of those articles the facilities of a good market. He contended that only a few people interested in the wine trade, storekeepers, and woodcutters, were calling out for this measure. It was impossible that the bill could serve the people. Our people would be served better and cheaper if we went on collecting the duties. He thought this clause for taking account ought to be struck out.

Mr. ROBERTSON said, however stupid the policy of this measure might appear to him to be, it did appear to be the policy of the country. He could not help thinking that an appeal to that House, after its repeated decisions, would be simply wearying themselves out for no good purpose. (Hear, hear.) He believed the time would come—probably in a few weeks—when the country would begin to understand it; and he did not feel warranted in giving any other opposition to the bill than his simple vote. The words proposed to be added would, he thought, make more clear what was meant. And he thought it would be a waste of public time for the minority to go on opposing the amendment, because it was merely what was intended by the Minister who introduced the bill, and by the party who were supporting it. But he felt convinced that the whole thing was contrary to public policy, and he was sure that the time would speedily come when the House would find out the great mistake it had made. But it was not his business to offer any obstruction to the passing of the bill at this stage, or to set his opinions or capacity to deal with this question above those of other people. He had now simply to record his vote against it. But once for all, he must now say a few words on this question. Now what was the proposition? It was proposed to give the wine-growers in one part of the country—the wine-growers of the Murray—3s. per gallon on their wine from the general revenue; and the wine-growers of the Hunter and other districts would have to pay it. The growers of wheat on the Murray were to have something like 9d. per bushel on their wheat going into Victoria; whilst the wheatgrowers of other portions of the colony were to pay it for them. He found that the grain-growers of the Hunter, the Clarence, the Tweed, the Hastings, and other districts, had to pay 8d. per bushel on maize going into Victoria; whilst those who grew maize on the Murray sent their produce into Victoria free of duty—or rather, the duty was paid out of the general revenue of New South Wales. (Hear, hear.) Why should this be so? He should like to know why people who made butter at Kiama, at Shoalhaven, at Wollongong, or anywhere else on the coast, should have to pay 2d. per lb. on the butter they sent to Melbourne; whilst people in the great butter-producing districts on the Murray should be allowed to send their butter in free. In the one case New South Wales paid it, and in the other the consumer paid it. So it was with wine, with grain, and with butter. In cheese also, and with wheat it was the same. It had been thought unwise to allow the export of our timber into Victoria for the purpose of making their railways; and at the instance of Parliament reserves had been made for timber. Well, he never sympathised with these reserves, for he was in favour of free trade; but those persons who complained of those things were the wine, corn, grain, and timber people. He was certain that the whole course was wrong, and the whole object and aim of the bill was a mistaken one. [Mr. GARRETT: Hear, hear.] He had no doubt that hon. members who told their constituents that they would take a certain step had done so, and he could not complain of that; but he had given his opinion and all the arguments he could in favour of what he believed to be the right course. He thought the bill would be injurious to the interests of free trade, because it would be giving premiums which would be far more injurious than the duties themselves. The bill was a rotten pretence of free trade; for where was the equality where a portion of the people had to pay duty on wheat, maize, cheese, and timber, while the other portion paid nothing? Was that free trade? This was a step, and the worst possible step, in favour of protection, because it offered premiums to one portion of the country, while money had to be paid by another portion of the colony. He desired to limit as far as possible the time for which this greatly mistaken policy should be extended. That was all he now sought.

Mr. TUNKS said the great objection hon. members who opposed the bill had to the measure was that certain inhabitants upon the south-western border of the colony had their wares sent to market and evaded duty; thereby having the preference over another portion of the colony. Looking over the proceedings of the delegates and of the last Parliament, he thought the hon. member for West Sydney, the hon. member for Kiama, and others were guilty of inconsistency in reference to the action they were now taking. They were now turning round upon themselves.

Mr. ROBERTSON said he was most amused at the hon. gentleman who had last spoken. The first proposal made by the delegates of New South Wales was, at any rate, in the matter of colonial produce, that the colonies should have free trade by sea and by land.

Mr. TUNKS: That is not the question.

Mr. ROBERTSON said if his hon. colleagues at Melbourne yielded from time to time, and yielded in his opinion more than they ought to have done, then it became hon. members to charge them with obstinacy in assuming a position and claiming to themselves certain rights, and to charge them with imperativeness in regard to this matter. It was said his late hon. colleagues agreed to a certain proposition, but the fact was overlooked that before this they proposed one which would have given, so far as colonial products were concerned, free trade by sea as well as by land.

Mr. TUNKS: The hon. member is mistaken. The motion was this,—"That this House approves of the steps taken by the Conference representatives in Melbourne, in September last, in reference to the question of imports and exports from this colony across or by way of the river Murray."

Mr. ROBERTSON: No doubt that was the proposal submitted to Parliament, but it was not the proposal made in the Conference, which was that we should have free trade by sea as well as by land, so far as colonial products were concerned. He believed his late colleagues yielded more than they should have done, and therefore what became of the charge of imperativeness and obstinacy brought against them by hon. members opposite? His opinion was that when their proposition was refused they ought to have retired from the Conference. It was objectionable, he admitted, but it was not so utterly objectionable as this.

Mr. TUNKS: No matter what you said; you gave your vote.

Mr. ROBERTSON: The hon. member did not understand the question. He evidently did not comprehend, and had not the capacity to understand it. The late delegates at any rate had a clear stand-point that we were to receive £60,000, but this was no stand-point, and might let us into paying a sum of money instead of receiving anything. He never defended the principle upon which the late delegates acted, but now they were not only yielding up the principle but the substance, and he thought it was a mistake. He thought the hon. gentleman at the head of the Government would have acted wisely, for his own reputation and character as a statesman, and for his own conception of this important principle between the colonies, if he were to study the principle of the late Government, that we should have free trade between the colonies by sea and by land. He did not pretend to say that any arrangement was made between the present head of the Government and the head of a late Government in Victoria; but it seemed to him that something like an understanding was come to on the visit of the hon. Premier to Melbourne. He did not wish to make any charge——

Mr. PARKES: You dare not make any charges! (Cries of "Oh, oh.")

Mr. ROBERTSON: Listen to the insolence, the stupidity of the hon. member at the head of the Government, challenging any one to dare to make a charge. The hon. member dare make charges when he could not prove them; but he (Mr. Robertson) was above that. But this was what he knew. He knew that a large section of the community, nearly one-third of the people, were the bitterest enemies of the hon. member, and when he came back from Melbourne, these people, as a body, became his friends. What the reason was he did not know—he merely stated the fact, and left people to draw their own inferences.

Mr. ARNOLD asked, by the provisions of what law was the amount of our exports required to be known? He supposed the present provision was intended to give the Government a sort of right to take account of other than dutiable exports.

Mr. GARRETT said the only article of export that bore a duty was gold, and it was not likely that much would be sent across the border. By that bill the power of taxing our exports was passed over to Victoria.

Mr. ARNOLD said the fact of the Government not having given an answer clearly showed the validity of his objection. (Hear, hear.) He did not believe it could be disputed that the bill conveyed no power to take any particulars beyond those expressed, and as he had already said, there were very few goods upon which export duty was levied. With regard to those articles which did not come within the category of dutiable goods, it was quite clear that it would be in the power of persons exporting them to make any statement they liked, and therefore the account of exports could not be trustworthy. If the Government were as ingenuous as they professed to be, they ought to make it most clear and intelligible that they intended to pay to the Government of Victoria on behalf of persons exporting goods from New South Wales to Victoria, the amount of goods from New South Wales to Victoria, the amount of duties payable on such goods. If this were so, the bill did not state it clearly. It was an essential feature of the Constitution, that the money of the people should not be appropriated in any doubtful kind of way; and there was nothing in the bill, even if it included the words to which he was objecting, to authorise the appropriation of money. What was the difference between a direct payment from the Treasury and an authority to the Government of Victoria to act as our collectors, and deduct from the amount the sums due upon exports? It was precisely the same thing. The observations of the Colonial Secretary had in no way answered this. If it were desirable that they should pay the amount of duties upon exports from the colony they ought to repay the amounts which had been paid during the last five months. He knew, of course, the such a proposition could not have been included in the present bill, but if they were justified in paying those duties they ought to repay the amounts already paid. The Government could not authorise the deduction of these amounts, and he warned them that the bill would not give them the power to appropriate any portion of this money. The best course would be to send a message to the House, asking that a sum of money might be appropriated for the payment of those duties. That would be the simple and straightforward way, and there would then be very little difficulty in comprehending the thing exactly. If they appropriated, say £100,000, and on account of every gallon or wine paid 3s., on every bushel of wheat 6d., and so much upon timber, they would then be able to comprehend the thing exactly. If the hon. the Colonial Secretary would proceed by this straightforward course, he would find very few supporters. It was only because the question was not comprehended that it received the support of a majority. It was all very well for the Colonial Secretary to try and tell them that the thing had been discussed in the House and the country; but he maintained that it was not understood even by an hon. gentleman who spoke that evening of the effect of the duties levied by Victoria as being perfectly immaterial. He was not there to justify his consistency, though he considered that he had been tolerably consistent. He had argued the case as it affected the general interests of the country. The duty was virtually remitted to those persons who were probably in a few weeks—when the country would begin to understand it; and he did not feel warranted in giving any other opposition to the bill than his simple vote. The words proposed to be added would, he thought, make more clear what was meant. And he thought it would be a waste of public time for the minority to go on opposing the amendment, because it was merely what was intended by the Minister who introduced the bill, and by the party who were supporting it. But he felt convinced that the whole thing was contrary to public policy, and he was sure that the time would speedily come when the House would find out the great mistake it had made. But it was not his business to offer any obstruction to the passing of the bill at this stage, or to set his opinions or capacity to deal with this question above those of other people. He had now simply to record his vote against it. But once for all, he must now say a few words on this question. Now what was the proposition? It was proposed to give the wine-growers in one part of the country—the wine-growers of the Murray—3s. per gallon on their wine from the general revenue; and the wine-growers of the Hunter and other districts would have to pay it. The growers of wheat on the Murray were to have something like 9d. per bushel on their wheat going into Victoria; whilst the wheatgrowers of other portions of the colony were to pay it for them. He found that the grain-growers of the Hunter, the Clarence, the Tweed, the Hastings, and other districts, had to pay 8d. per bushel on maize going into Victoria; whilst those who grew maize on the Murray sent their produce into Victoria free of duty—or rather, the duty was paid out of the general revenue of New South Wales. (Hear, hear.) Why should this be so? He should like to know why people who made butter at Kiama, at Shoalhaven, at Wollongong, or anywhere else on the coast, should have to pay 2d. per lb. on the butter they sent to Melbourne; whilst people in the great butter-producing districts on the Murray should be allowed to send their butter in free. In the one case New South Wales paid it, and in the other the consumer paid it. So it was with wine, with grain, and with butter. In cheese also, and with wheat it was the same. It had been thought unwise to allow the export of our timber into Victoria for the purpose of making their railways; and at the instance of Parliament reserves had been made for timber. Well, he never sympathised with these reserves, for he was in favour of free trade; but those persons who complained of those things were the wine, corn, grain, and timber people. He was certain that the whole course was wrong, and the whole object and aim of the bill was a mistaken one. [Mr. GARRETT: Hear, hear.] He had no doubt that hon. members who told their constituents that they would take a certain step had done so, and he could not complain of that; but he had given his opinion and all the arguments he could in favour of what he believed to be the right course. VICE-REGAL VISIT TO PARRAMATTA.

YESTERDAY his Excellency the Governor visited Parramatta, and he was accompanied from Sydney by the Hon. Lucy Robinson, Captain and Mrs. St. John, Mr. G. H. De Robeck, the Colonial Secretary and Premier (the Hon. Henry Parkes), the Vice-President of the Executive Council (the Hon. Saul Samuel, M.L.C.), the Colonial Treasurer (the Hon. W. R. Piddington), the Solicitor-General (the Hon. George A. Lloyd), and Mr. George Oakes, M.L.A. The train left the Redfern terminus shortly before 11 o'clock, and arrived at Parramatta in about half an hour afterwards. On the platform at Parramatta there was a large concourse of persons; and the people enthusiastically cheered his Excellency as he stepped out of the carriage, and the band of the Parramatta Volunteers played the national anthem. The verandah of the station was dressed with foliage and flags; and the principal room of the station was carpeted and decorated with flowers for the reception of the Governor. His Excellency was received by the Mayor of Parramatta (Mr. Hugh Taylor, M.L.A.), and the Hon. J. S. Farnell (Minister for Lands). The Mayor presented the following address:—

"To his Excellency Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, K.C.M.G., Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the colony of New South Wales.

"We, the mayor and aldermen of the borough of Parramatta, beg to express the high sense which we entertain of your Excellency's kindness and consideration in honouring Parramatta with your presence so soon after your Excellency's arrival in the colony.

"We trust that we may be permitted to remind your Excellency that Parramatta is not only the second town in the colony, historically considered, but that it was for many years the favoured residence of your predecessor Governors.

"We avail ourselves of the auspicious occasion to convey to your Excellency and Lady Robinson our respectful congratulations on your first visit to our township, and at the same time to record our firm and devoted attachment to her Most Gracious Majesty and the principles of the British Constitution.

"Signed on behalf of the Council, this eighth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two.

"HUGH TAYLOR, Mayor.

"SYDNEY WILLMAN, Council Clerk."

HIS EXCELLENCY replied:—

"Mr. Mayor, and Aldermen of the Borough of Parramatta.

"I have to thank you for your loyal and patriotic address, and for the congratulations you are so good as to offer to Lady Robinson and myself on the occasion of our first visit to Parramatta.

"We have so often heard of your picturesque town and neighbourhood, and of your very creditable local institutions, that we have had much pleasure in accepting your kind invitation here for to-day; and I have no doubt that we shall very often revisit the interesting locality during our residence in New South Wales.

The following gentlemen were presented to his Excellency:—Mr. John Lackey, M.L.A.; Mr. John Hurley, M.L.A. (for Central Cumberland); the Hon. John Blaxland, M.L.C.; Alderman John Taylor, Alderman Parker, Alderman Coates, Alderman Dixon, Alderman Farnell, Alderman Mason, Mr. G. Langley, J.P.; Mr. H. Fairclough, J.P.; Mr. Golledge, J.P.; Mr. N. Stewart, J.P.; Mr. R. L. Rowling, J.P.; Mr. J. Neale, J.P.; Revs. W. J. Gunther, — Bloomfield, J. H. Fletcher, W. Hill, T. S. Forsaith.

The wife of the Mayor, and several other ladies, were presented to the Hon. Lady Robinson.

The Druids, Oddfellows, Foresters, and Sons of Temperance took part in the demonstration, with their banners and other insignia. His Excellency and party, for whom carriages were provided, then drove to the Asylum for Insane, to the Roman Catholic Orphan School, and the Benevolent Asylum, and, but for the state of the road, would also have visited the Protestant Orphan School, which is situate a short distance outside the town. At each of the institutions visited his Excellency spent some time, and made many inquiries respecting the condition of the inmates. The party then repaired to Payten's Hotel, where luncheon was served in very superior style. The chair was occupied by the Mayor of Parramatta, and the vice-chair by the Hon. J. S. Farnell.

After luncheon,

The CHAIRMAN proposed the health of the Queen, and the toast was drunk with cheers.

The CHAIRMAN then said that he had the honour to propose the health of his Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson. (Cheers.) Although his Excellency had been but a short time in the colony, yet his Excellency had already shown his determination to become acquainted with the country, its wants and resources, and this augured well for his future success in administering the affairs of the country. (Cheers.)

The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm.

His EXCELLENCY Sir HERCULES ROBINSON said: Mr. Mayor, I have to thank you very sincerely for the kind terms in which you have proposed my health; and you, ladies and gentlemen, for the great cordiality with which you have received the toast. The office of returning thanks, I always think—at all events in my hands—is a difficult and unpractical one; for I feel that, say what I will, and in what language I please, it must always resolve itself into the three plain and simple words—"I thank you." (Cheers.) I trust, however, that you will not think, in consequence of my inability to return thanks in more suitable terms, that I feel the less grateful, or that my thanks are the less sincere. For I assure you I am very sensible of the compliment you have paid me in drinking my health. I am grateful also for the opportunity you have afforded me to-day of inspecting your interesting little town of Parramatta, with its very creditable public institutions, and for the cordial and hearty manner in which you have manifested to me your welcome and goodwill. Perhaps I may be allowed also to take this opportunity of expressing my sense of the kindly reception which I have received everywhere since my arrival in New South Wales, and the favourable first impressions which I have formed of the colony and the people. (Cheers.) Of course, for those first impressions I have seen I was in a measure prepared by what I had previously heard and read. For example, I had often heard before of the unrivalled beauty of Sydney harbour—and of this I will merely say, in passing, that all description falls far short of the reality. I had often heard also of the beautiful situation of the city of Sydney, and of its fine public buildings—of your delightful climate, of the marvellous natural resources of the colony, and of the industry and enterprise with which they are being developed; but perhaps, on the whole, that which has charmed me most has been in finding everything so English—(Cheers)—and the people so intensely loyal. (Cheers.) It would really seem as if the sentiment of loyalty, like that of love, thrives best in the absence of needless dictation and restraint—(Hear, hear)—for it appears to me that exactly in proportion as the colony has been allowed to advance in self-government, so, step by step, have become intensified feelings of personal devotion to the Queen, and affectionate attachment to the old country. (Cheers.) I may mention also that I have been greatly struck with the number and character of your benevolent and other social institutions. Your asylums and hospitals provide for the relief of human suffering, and for the medical treatment of the sick population to an extent which would reflect the utmost credit upon even a much older community, whilst your admirable scholastic and educational establishments, many of which I have already had the pleasure of visiting, afford abundant evidence of the deep interest which is felt here in that most important question. Looking the other day over the Statistical Register of the colony for the year 1870, I was very much gratified to find that, notwithstanding the vast area over which a comparatively sparse population is scattered, the number of persons attending places of public worship every Sunday considerably exceeds one-third of the whole population—(hear, hear)—that the average number attending Sunday schools is over 10 per cent., and that the average number of scholars attending week day schools throughout the colony is considerably in excess of 7 per cent. of the whole population. These are a few salient facts which appear to me to be brimful of hope for the future, showing, as they do, the strenuous efforts which are being made here to advance the population in intelligence and virtue, and in all those qualities which make a people great and happy. (Hear, hear.) These are a few of the first impressions which have been presented to my mind, coming here, as I have, from one of the largest and most important of the Oriental dependencies of the Crown, to this free colony. But, perhaps, in scarcely anything is the contrast between the two places more marked than in the different position which is occupied by the Governor in each. In a great Crown colony such as Ceylon, the Governor administers a system of purely personal government. His position has been well described as rivalling that of a French pedlet in the minuteness of his interference, while he is at the same time as autocratic as a modern Cæsar. But great power carries with it great responsibility—(Hear, hear)—and great responsibility entails a large amount of anxiety. I have in my own person often experienced the admirable description given by Thackeray, in "Vanity Fair," of the Governor of Coventry Island, who was declared by his admirers to be a heaven-born governor, whilst by his opponents he was denounced as a tyrant, compared to whom Nero was an enlightened philanthropist. The one point, however, upon which all parties in Ceylon appear to have been agreed was, that I was, at all events, a hard-working Governor; and it was on that very point that my good friends there most coincided with me upon my transfer to New South Wales, expressing their fears that I should never be satisfied unless I was always doing the whole work of government myself. (Laughter.) They seemed to think that as I had been so long accustomed to drive the coach myself, I could never be satisfied with the otium cum dignitate of an inside seat. (Laughter.) I think in this matter, however, that my friends showed less than their usual discrimination. A Governor of a great Crown colony like Ceylon is forced by a sense of the responsibility of his position to work, and he is obliged to see that every measure is devised and carried out which may appear to him to be necessary or desirable for the good government of those whose interests are committed to his care. (Hear, hear.) But under the Constitutional system which prevails in this country, all those interests are entrusted to persons who hold office upon a political tenure. (Hear, hear.) And whilst I am sure that those gentlemen will never be prepared or willing to share with me any portion of the power which the Constitution has entrusted to them, so I feel equally sure that I shall never attempt by undue interference to relieve them of any portion of their legitimate responsibility. (Cheers.) Whilst therefore there is a great difference between the position of a Governor who administers a personal as distinguished from a Parliamentary government, still I am far from thinking that the position occupied by the representative of her Majesty here is either an unimportant or an unimportant one. (Cheers.) Constituting as he does, the official link, as it were, between the colony and the mother country, he can often, I think, by tact and judgment, do much to maintain harmony of actions between the local and the imperial officials. (Cheers.) Placed also as he is above the strife of local politics, he can, by holding the balance equally between contending parties, by never allowing himself in the slightest degree to become a partisan—do much at times to allay the asperity of political warfare—(cheers)—whilst it is his especial privilege to be able, without provoking jealousy or suspicion, to take a warm interest in such subjects as education and agriculture, and in all measures for the material improvement of the colony as well as for the social and moral advancement of the people, upon which the future progress and lasting welfare and happiness of the community so materially depend. Feeling thus, as I do, the importance of the position, I assure you that I do not think that my transfer from a system of personal to a system of Parliamentary government is, as my friends in Ceylon seemed to think, at all a subject for condolence. (Hear, hear.) On the contrary, I consider myself most fortunate in having been selected for the high and honourable end, I may say, most agreeable position of her Majesty's representative in this country. (Cheers.) It has been my good fortune also to come here at a time when everything is prosperous. (Hear, hear.) After years of depression, all the producing interests of the colony appear to be in a most flourishing state; and, as far as it is possible to forecast the future, there appears to be some years of great prosperity in store for New South Wales. (Cheers.) I am sure I devoutly hope that this anticipation may be realised, and that the colony may now be at the commencement of an era which will be marked by the uninterrupted progressive improvement of the country and the well-being and advancement social, as well as material, of all classes of the community. (Cheers.) I cannot sit down without asking you to allow me to propose a toast. I ask you to drink a bumper to the health of the Mayor and Municipal Corporation of Parramatta and to the success and prosperity of the town. (Cheers.)

Alderman JOHN TAYLOR responded, and proposed,—"The Parliament of New South Wales." Calls were made for the Premier, and

Mr. PARKES responded. He said that he must be exceedingly brief, as he supposed it was the wish of the gentlemen present to have a speech from every member of Parliament present. (Laughter.) There was one observation in the speech of Alderman Taylor that very much pleased him, and that was that Parramatta did not want anything from the Parliament. He could not refrain from complimenting Parramatta on its distinguished patriotism, and blessed were they who required nothing. (Laughter.) The Parliament of New South Wales, though young, need not be ashamed of its history. Its members were always prepared to do patriotic service on occasions like these, and altogether he thought they were a set of jolly good fellows. (Laughter.)

Calls were made for the Vice-President of the Executive Council, and

Mr. SAMUEL returned thanks on behalf the Legislative Council. He said that he was a young member, having but very recently entered the ranks of that august body. He had been accustomed to fight in another arena, but now found himself in a peaceable place indeed. The quiet of the Upper House was hardly suited to his taste, but, being of a particularly amiable disposition—(laughter)—he had no doubt he should be able to accommodate himself to it. The members of the Legislative Council were not to be exceeded in patriotism—(Mr. PIDDINGTON: Nor in talent.)—by any body of gentlemen in the colony. They would continue to perform their duty with that zeal, ability, and patriotism which had hitherto distinguished them.

Mr. FARNELL, the senior member for Parramatta, was also prevailed upon to return thanks.

Mr. PARKES said that there was one other toast to which great importance was attached, and he had been requested to propose it by the Mayor of Parramatta, as he supposed, because he was the youngest gentleman present. (Laughter.) He had now the pleasure to propose the health of the Honorable Lady Robinson, and the ladies of the colony. (Cheers.) His Excellency had said a great deal about the rich resources and the many beauties of this fair land of ours; but when his Excellency came to understand the wealth we possessed in the native-born ladies of the country—notwithstanding the good reason his Excellency had to be thankful for the blessings close at hand—he would be filled with fresh enthusiasm in favour of New South Wales. (Cheers.)

His Excellency Sir HERCULES ROBINSON said: I suppose the office of returning thanks for the ladies of New South Wales belongs of right to the youngest bachelor who may be present, or to any person who may be elected by the ladies for that important and honourable duty. From the eager glances I see around the table I shall not for one moment think of interfering with that gentleman's prerogative—(laughter)—but will confine myself to expressing a few words of acknowledgment on behalf of Lady Robinson, who is very grateful for the compliment you have paid her in drinking her health, and who has derived great pleasure from her visit to Parramatta to-day. (Cheers.) I may go further, and say that, like myself, Lady Robinson is exceedingly pleased with all that she has seen in New South Wales. She is prepared to like the colony, and to take a deep interest in all that concerns its welfare. (Cheers.) It will be her desire as far as possible to promote good fellowship and good feeling in our little community—to bring people together—to avoid everything approaching to cliquism—(hear, hear)—and to encourage all those gatherings and amusements which tend so materially to subdue those asperities which are sometimes unavoidable in the intercourse of colonial life, and to promote a spirit of goodwill. (Cheers.) I only wish custom would permit Lady Robinson to return thanks for herself, for I can assure you, intimately acquainted as I am with her great powers of speech—(laughter)—you would then be revelling in a torrent of eloquence which, under present circumstances, you can neither hope nor expect. (Laughter.) Allow me, therefore, briefly but in all truth and sincerity to assure you that Lady Robinson is very much obliged for the compliment you have paid her, and that she will always entertain a very grateful recollection of this agreeable first day at Parramatta, which your kindness and hospitality have enabled her to enjoy. (Cheers.)

Mr. INNES responded on behalf of the ladies of the colony.

His Excellency and the Hon. Lady Robinson having heard that Mrs. Oakes (the mother of Mr. George Oakes, M.L.A., of Quirang) was resident in Parramatta, expressed a desire to call upon that lady, who, as many of our readers are probably aware, is the oldest native of the colony now living. Mrs. Oakes is eighty-three years of age, enjoys perfect health, and is still in the possession of all her faculties. After some conversation with Mrs. Oakes, the Governor and his suite were driven round the Parramatta Domain by Mr. Oakes. They stayed to look at the old Government House, and then proceeded to Mr. Oakes's orchard, thirty acres in extent, and which now contains nearly three thousand orange trees in full bearing. They left Parramatta by special train for Sydney at about 5 o'clock.

THE TRANS-AUSTRALIAN TELEGRAPH.

The South Australian Register of July 2 publishes the following telegram from Mr. C. Todd, Superintendent of Telegraphs and Postmaster-General of South Australia, to the Chief Secretary, Adelaide:—

"Daly Waters, June 26.—I arrived at Daly Waters on the afternoon of June 22, having finally left the Roper on the 13th. I should have got here a week sooner, but when twenty-five miles out was overtaken by a messenger from the landing-place, reporting the arrival of the schooner Lucy, with mail and cargo for the overland telegraph, which event caused me to go back. The spirits sent will be most useful; and having sickness amongst the men, I was glad to be able to purchase vegetables and other useful supplies, of which we were in want. She unfortunately brought no slop goods, which are much needed. The road from the Roper here is very good, but surface water will soon be scarce for the teams. This is a far better road than that from Fort Darwin, and to this point 200 miles shorter, showing the saving that would have been effected had the Roper been previously used as I wished. Mr. Bott also arrived here on the 16th with a message from Mr. Cunningham and important official despatches.

"The present state of the work is now approximately as follows:—The line is completed and opened from Fort Darwin to 15 miles south of Daly Waters, and the wire will be run up as quickly as the poles are planted, an operator being kept at the end of the wire to render all additional wire available for future communication. From the Port Augusta side communication at present extends to Tennant's Creek, and Harvey has poled 70 miles further north. Burton, who has the section immediately north of Harvey, is now on his work, and has 54 miles of wire for Harvey, which, with what is already at Tennant's Creek, will extend the communication 60 miles north of that point. The four teams which were detached from Harvey's party left the Daly Waters on the 21st with 30 miles of wire, and should reach their destination in about three weeks, when the wire can be immediately extended 108 miles north of Tennant's Creek. On the existing gap we have four large construction parties, under Messrs. Harvey, Burton, Mitchell, and Rutt. The three last are provisioned up to the end of October, and sufficient wire, &c., to close the line is now south, or at the Daly Waters. We have nothing more to bring up from the Roper but rations to enable the men to return and maintain a small party erecting the stations, which cannot be completed till after the wet season. It is doubted whether the stores or building materials for the stations can be carted this season, as we require all the available teams for line construction. Mr. Rutt, who has 50 or 60 miles of line south of the Daly Waters, is expected to complete his section in August, and will then return along the line and sink two or three wells on the dry country in the bed of the Burdum, between the Daly Waters and the Warlock Ponds on the Elsie. These are required for the further maintenance of the line, and to secure a safe retreat for the whole party, as the waterholes in the Strangways will not last. It is probable that the whole of the construction parties will be withdrawn by the end of September, except such as are required to build the stations; but of course some time before that I hope to secure through wire communication.

"I see no difficulty in the immediate establishment of a weekly estafette. The principal difficulty hitherto was the want of horses, which the action of the Government in hiring Mr. Lewis's stock has entirely obviated. Mr. Bouceut has established four intermediate relay camps, which will, I think, be sufficient. All, officers and men, are animated with but one idea—that of carrying on the work to a successful and speedy completion.

"On hearing of the arrival of Mr. Bouceut, the British-Australian Telegraph Company appear to have considered the express service virtually established; and immediately after I reached here several private messages were received. These, although irregular, as the line has not been formally opened, I have deemed it advisable to forward by the hands of Mr. Bouceut.

"I advised the Agent-general, immediately on my arrival, of the state of the work, and requested him to send a full news message, which, by express just starting could reach Adelaide in about five or six days after leaving London. Unfortunately, an interruption occurred in the Port Darwin and Java cable yesterday, and although I have detained Mr. Bouceut up to this time (the morning of the 26th), the communication has not been restored.

"Should any important intelligence arrive on communication being restored, I will endeavour to forward it by extra express. The company's manager at Port Darwin can not explain the cause of the interruption. I intend to leave here on June 27, and expect to reach Tennant's Creek about the middle of July."

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—MONDAY, JULY 8.

SITTINGS IN BANCO.

Before Mr. Justice HARGRAVE, Mr. Justice CHEEKE, and Mr. Justice FAUCETT.

M'DONALD AND WIFE V. WATSON AND WIFE—TO SETTLE MINUTES.

The judgment of the Court upon appeal herein was spoken to. There had been an appeal from a decree of the Primary Judge (Mr. Justice Hargrave), in the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, refusing probate of the alleged last will of the late Mr. Thomas Lindsay, of Branxton, West Maitland. There had been a trial of feigned issues between the parties for the purpose of determining the validity of such will, and the jury had found for the defendants,—the executors. The full Court had, however, set aside his Honor's decree, and directed a new trial of the feigned issues. The present application was made in order to settle the terms of this order.

Mr. Darley, Mr. Owen, and Mr. Davis, appeared for the plaintiffs; Sir William Manning, Q.C., Mr. Henry Stephen, and Mr. Salomons, for the defendants.

The COURT directed that the order should be that the Primary Judge's decree, so far only as it refused probate, should be set aside; that the residue of the decree (being that portion which related to costs) should be confirmed; that the verdict for the defendants should be set aside, and a new trial granted by a special jury of twelve; that all costs of both parties, as between solicitor and client, incurred on the appeal when taxed, should be paid to the respective solicitors.

EQUITY APPEALS.

PAYTEN V. PUNCH.

This was an appeal from a decree of the Primary Judge (Mr. Justice Hargrave) in a suit for specific performance of a contract for the purchase of land; the effect of such decree being that certain exceptions to the Master's report were allowed, and such report was over-ruled.

Sir William Manning, Q.C., and Mr. Davis appeared in support of the appeal; Sir James Martin, Q.C., and Mr. Gordon in support of the Primary Judge's decree.

The plaintiff (Mr. Payten) sold certain property in George-street (upon which is erected an hotel known as the General Washington) to the defendant Mr. James Punch for the sum of £2550, under a certain contract of sale. An abstract of title was made out and furnished to the vendee; but the latter's solicitors, having made a search against encumbrances in the Registry Office, obtained or demanded a return of the deposit made and declined to complete the purchase. A bill for specific performance was then filed, and the Primary Judge referred to the Master in Equity the question whether a proper title had been made out. The Master took evidence, and reported that the abstract of title had been good, and that the title itself was valid. Exceptions were taken to the Master's report; and his Honor ultimately decided in favour of the exceptions, thus virtually deciding for the defendant. The question before the Court was, whether a good title had been made out. According to the plaintiff's abstract, his title commenced as to portion of the property, with a conveyance dated July 2, 1844, from Mr. John Edye Manning to John Wood; as to another portion with a conveyance dated 23rd November, 1843, from Mr. John Terry Hughes to Wood; and as to the residue of the property with a conveyance, by way of lease and release, dated 10th and 12th September, 1836, from Hughes to Wood. Subsequently, in or about the year 1841, there was a Crown grant of the entire property to Wood; but about the year 1858 Wood had given a mortgage to the Savings Bank. Of this he took a reconveyance subsequent to the issue of the grant. The plaintiff purchased the property from Wood for £2350, and obtained an absolute conveyance, purporting to be free from all incumbrances, reciting seizure in fee, and covenanting for quiet possession, &c. The incumbrance discovered by the defendant's solicitor in the Registry Office for deeds were certain mortgages by Wood to a Mr. Doyle and to the late Colonel Shadforth. It was contended, in support of the appeal, that the title was perfectly good and valid to all intents and purposes; that three mortgages to Doyle had been consolidated in a fourth which had been paid off; and also that the incumbrances caused through the mortgages to Shadforth could be shown to have been cleared away. It was also argued that the plaintiff's title had been made good through the operation of the Lands Titles Act, sections 11 and 12, excluding the rights of all persons claiming otherwise than through the immediate grantee of property conveyed or affected; and further, that as there had been undisputed possession in Wood and Payten until the year 1841, there was a good statutory title under the Statute of Limitations. It was contended that under no circumstances could the title to the property, as it at present stood, be hazarded.

Their HONORS were unanimous in sustaining the decree of the Primary Judge. In order that a decree should be made for specific performance of a contract for the purchase of land, it was necessary that the title should be a good marketable title, absolutely free and clear. Where a Judge of a Court of Equity had decided that a title was not indefensible, there must be a very strong case to show that he had been mistaken; and unless his decree had been demonstrably wrong, the Court would not interfere with it. It could not be said that there was a clear title—a title to be forced upon a reluctant purchaser—if the Primary Judge had impeached it. Their Honors were also of opinion that there had been, upon the whole, a failure of evidence to support the plaintiff's title. However good that title might be, as a statutory title, the Court would not enforce specific performance upon a purchaser where there was any doubt, or where the title depended merely upon evidence of the vendor. The CHIEF JUSTICE, and Mr. Justice FAUCETT, regretted that the decision of the Court must be against the vendor; for there could be no moral doubt that the plaintiff's title was a strong one to all intents and purposes, and that the defendant had been an unwilling purchaser.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

HUMPHERY V. MULCAHY.

The appeal herein was, upon the motion of Mr. DAVIS, for the appellants, withdrawn. The plaintiff's bill stands dismissed without costs, and a sum of £50 deposited by the defendant is to be withdrawn.

MISPRINT.—In the Chief Justice's judgment in the "Queen v. Oakley," in Saturday's issue, the word "never" is printed instead of "nowhere." The sentence should read "though it might be gathered that the matter occurred in the night time it was nowhere expressly stated."

INSOLVENCY COURT.

MONDAY.

Before the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.

In the estate of John Bennett, a special meeting, for examination. Not prosecuted, and struck out.

In the estate of Edward J. Skryme, an adjourned single meeting. Two debts were proved. The examination meeting also closed.

In the estate of John E. Irwin, a special meeting, for examination. One witness was sworn to be examined by Mr. S. C. Brown for a creditor; but as the evidence sought was to impeach a proof admitted in August, 1870, under an award and rule of Court, and the plan of distribution having been confirmed and the dividend paid, his Honor held that it was inadmissible.

In the estate of Patrick Whelan, a special meeting, under two summonses, for examination. Insolvent and a witness were examined by Mr. F. Gannon, and the meeting terminated. In the same estate, an adjourned single meeting was held, at which insolvent made an offer of payment by instalments, which the creditors agreed to accept, and he was allowed his household furniture and wearing apparel.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

MONDAY.

Before the Mayor and the Police Magistrate, with Messrs. Murphy, Powell, Pearce, Spence, Smart, and Charlton.

Ten persons were fined in sums varying from 5s. to 20s., for drunkenness or for riotous behaviour. Catherine Richards, described as a vagrant, was fined 20s. for being drunk, and 40s., at the same time, for making use of obscene language. Maria Daly was sentenced to pay £5, or to be imprisoned three months, for using obscene language.

Edward Powell, found guilty of having wilfully broken a window, the property of William Farrer, was ordered to pay 5s. damages, or to be imprisoned three days.

Mary Ann Wright was charged with vagrancy. In reply she alleged that she had a husband, who supported her, and gave the address of a place at which she alleged they lodged. Benjamin Wright claimed her as his wife. She was put back while a constable went to see the person referred to as her husband's landlord, who, however, refused to come and give evidence. Sergeant Lawler and another policeman gave evidence of the character of the man she said was her husband, but they did not say that he is not her husband. Mr. Pearce read from a written paper handed to him, but which was not given in evidence, a list of thirty-five convictions against her within the last six years, which his Worship held was sufficient evidence, with that of the apprehending officer, to sustain the present charge, and sentenced her to be imprisoned three months, with a promise of six months if she appeared before him again.

Two prisoners were discharged, and other two were remanded.

On the summons paper were nine cases, of which one was dismissed, four were not prosecuted, and in one a warrant was granted for the apprehension of the defendant. Mary Dyball was fined 10s. for assaulting Catherine M'Guffie; Sarah Jane Tabor was fined 10s. for assaulting Maria Lester; and Maria Lester was fined 10s. for using words calculated to provoke Sarah Jane Tabor to commit a breach of the peace.

WATER POLICE COURT.

MONDAY.

Seven persons convicted of drunkenness were fined in various penalties.

Leslie Morrison, convicted of assaulting William Woodbury was sent to gaol for one month.

Margaret Strong, charged with vagrancy, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment.

William Grant, Benjamin Dickson, and William Schlof, brought before the Court charged with combining to neglect duty on board the schooner Colonist, were remanded until Wednesday next.

LICENSING BUSINESS.—James Moore was granted a goatelle license for the Ice Hotel, South Head Road.

HORSE BREEDING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—I see in the papers that a movement has been recently made by several persons to try and obtain the interference of the Legislature for promoting improvement in horse breeding.

It may be safely assumed, I think, that the principle of Government meddling with private pursuits is a bad one, except under the pressure of necessity; and there is clearly no necessity in this case, for the petitioners, if they choose to put their shoulders to the wheel, are quite able to help themselves. The object in view is said to be to destroy all the bad horses by means of a tax imposed upon the good ones, and by the same means to reward the breeders of superior animals; and it is supposed that by this process the breed of horses will be so much improved that all the tax-payers will be benefited to a much greater extent than the amount of the tax.

I would like to ask the promoters of this movement two or three questions. Is it not the fault of the horse breeders, in neglecting their horses, that the country is now so much overrun with wild ones?

Why should the owner of a few good mares be taxed to pay for the neglect of other persons?

What is there to prevent the horse breeders breeding good horses now?

It is certainly desirable the breed should be improved; but to accomplish this it is necessary that the mares should be kept in paddocks, and if the breeders choose to go to the expense of paddocks, there is nothing to prevent them breeding good horses now, though the unfenced country should be swarming with wild horses.

In fact, when the breeding of good horses is generally neglected, the better it is for those who attend to it.

But perhaps the petitioners think that if the wild horses were destroyed they would be spared the expense of fencing, and might allow their mares to run at large as heretofore. If they think so it is a delusion, for a similar cause to that which allowed the horses formerly to run wild would assuredly bring round similar results—another plague of wild horses on some future day.

There is nothing I know of to keep run-owners from clearing their runs of wild horses if they only keep on shooting them for two or three years more as they have done hitherto, but, I daresay, it would be much pleasanter to have it done for them. If this principle of Legislative interference be once adopted, where is it to end? The application of it is so mild, and might be made so general, that Government at last might interfere with so many things that it would be quite unbearable. Why should it not be applied to cattle-breeding and sheep-farming? As they are both more important pursuits than horse-breeding, the reason for interference is so much the stronger. Why should it not be applied to agriculture? Look at the large number of slovenly farms, mere nurseries of bad weeds, which spread over the face of the country. What a blessing it would be to prevent it! Well might the good farmers complain if they were taxed to help the slovens to clean their dirty fields.

Similarly, the man who breeds good horses would have cause to complain of being taxed to enable the slothful and careless breeder to compete with him.

This cry of distress from the horse-breeders, petitioning for Parliamentary aid, like children asking their parents for what is not good for them, seems rather pitiful when all the circumstances of the case are considered.

I was a horse-breeder myself once, and know well the origin of the wild horse nuisance. It began by the squatters neglecting their horses till they ran wild, and it ought to end by their destroying them, and that without assistance.

It is scarcely worth while to say anything about the details of the scheme, as I do not think it could be worked to the public advantage. One thing, however, is clear enough, and that is, that the bill petitioned for must contain pains and penalties to enforce its provisions, and also a declaration to be made, of which there are more than enough already to demoralise the people. The result would be much the same as it is under the present land laws; the honest and conscientious man would fall by the truth, and pay—the man who sets conscience to one side when convenient would not, and would profit in so doing.

I am, &c.,

TOM HORSEY.

FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—As you have always been the means of advocating any steps that have been taken for the benefit of the colony at large, I should feel obliged if you would insert the following:—For the last month the daily question here has been, will the Government take steps to prevent the foot-and-mouth disease being introduced into this colony from Victoria, now that it has been proved, beyond a doubt, that the disease is extensively circulated through the sister colony, and amongst pigs, sheep, and horses, as well as cattle? I should think some stringent measures should be at once put in force to protect our herds and flocks from this fearful scourge, to at once save the colony from the impending evil. I would suggest that the police and sheep inspectors stationed at the different crossings on the Murray, be instructed to stop all stock and bullock teams from crossing to this colony. This is the time of the year that the Victorian carriers all flock to New South Wales, and as the bullock teams were the first to introduce pleuro to Riverina, I have no hesitation in stating they will also bring the foot-and-mouth disease, that is, if they are allowed to cross. As to putting an inspector to examine stock, and if pronounced clean by him, allow them to cross, this would be simply nonsense. I have known hundreds of cattle, which have been passed as free from pleuro, to have the disease in its worst form lurking in their blood, requiring only a change of grass to again break out and kill them by scores. As a thing of this kind requires prompt and decisive action, the better plan would be to prohibit all stock from crossing the Murray, say for three or four months, or until the disease has been completely stamped out in Victoria. If something of this sort is not at once done, and Victorian carriers prevented from bringing their bullock teams over the river, I am convinced in a few months the different stations in Riverina will be like so many hot beds—rearing and fostering the foot-and-mouth disease for the remainder of the colony. I believe there is now at Echuca a bull, which is affected with the disease, and as that is the principal crossing-place for cattle and teams, something should be at once done in the matter. If the plague once gets a footing in this colony, it will take years, and thousands of pounds to again free us from the evil. Look at the trouble it has taken to get rid of pleuro, and even now we are not quite rid of it, as there are hundreds of cattle in this district which have had the pleuro, and been as their owners thought cured, yet still they manage to hand it down to their stock from year to year, and will continue to do so with the pleasing prospect of its again breaking out at any moment. I have just been informed that cattle have been stopped from crossing for one month. They might as well have let them come over, as any one that knows anything about stock is aware that infectious diseases may linger about them for weeks without showing any sign that the heart is affected. Nothing less than the time I state will keep us clear from the pest.

Hoping you will kindly insert the above,

JERILDERIE.

SMALL-POX.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—It is now more than two months since I was called to attend a young lady who was said to be suffering from a peculiar rash. On visiting her I came to the conclusion that it was a case of small-pox. But as it was the general belief that the disease had never appeared in this country, I consulted with three medical gentlemen who had seen small-pox within the last six years, and were well acquainted with its symptoms, and they were unanimous in corroborating my opinion. Since then I have had three several cases of the same kind, but I was advised to refrain from drawing public attention to the matter so as not to create that "small-pox panic" which appears to prevail in the sister colonies, and which, since the late telegrams, may possibly affect this colony also. At present the disease as it appears in Sydney is of a mild form, but as there are many persons unvaccinated, it would be advisable for them to apply for vaccination at once—the best precaution which as individuals they can take to prevent the contagion, or at least to tame the virulence of this dreadful malady.

GEO. J. PATTISON, Physician and Surgeon.

Premier-terrace, July 8th.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—It is lamentable to note the way in which power now-a-days is prostituted when placed in the hands of persons whose antecedents in life and the want of a liberal education prove them to be the least qualified for its proper and legitimate exercise. Men dragged from obscurity and hustled into Parliament afford the most prominent illustrations of the abuse of power and influence. This remark applies equally to all the colonies which have been

June 29.—Goolwa, for Newcastle.

The Martha Birnie, from London, arrived on Saturday. Her commander (Captain Taylor) was one of the expedition that was sent to the Arctic regions in the Fox, under Captain M'Clintock, when the fate of Sir John Franklin's party had some light thrown upon it. During his stay in the Frigid circle he became snow-blind; and on the present voyage the old complaint reappeared, so that sight is almost gone, and the greater part of the navigation has devolved on Mr. Lawrence, the chief officer. The Martha Birnie left London on March 30, and after she passed the Cape on May 22nd in 41° S. a series of gales did considerable damage to the vessel's upper works. The poop rail was smashed, the life-boats stove, and the cabin half filled with water. On June 6 a sea came over the poop, knocking down the helmsman and breaking the wheel spokes. The master in attempting to secure the wheel was severely wounded in the abdomen by the splintered portion. During the passage of the Southern Ocean bad weather continued, and at one time a gale blew so hard that the vessel was for twenty-four hours hove-to under close canvas.—S. A. Register, July 1.

Copy of telegram received yesterday, Thursday, by Mr. CORNISH, from Mr. ALFRED A. O'CONNOR, to the Provisional Directors of the Buckinbah Copper Mine:—"Mr. Gibson, original discoverer of mine, and for many months prospecting it, showed me splendid ore in over a dozen places along the present line of lode, besides two additional lodes of ore equal to and superior to anything yet found. Five large sacks of ore from original lode, and one from new lode, forwarded to arrive in Sydney, Monday next Mr. Gibson assists me in the official survey."

ROXBURGH CONSOLS.—The Proprietors of this justly celebrated mine wish to inform intending Shareholders that their only object in offering it to the public is, that it may be more EFFICIENTLY AND EXPEDITIOUSLY WORKED; and, as a guarantee of the bona fides of their object, the Shareholders can appoint any of their number to visit and report upon the mine, and the Proprietors will PAY ALL THEIR EXPENSES INCIDENTAL TO THE JOURNEY, AND REFUND THE CAPITAL SUBSCRIBED should the report be unsatisfactory.

THIS EXCEPTIONAL INDUCEMENT is held out to the Public, as the Proprietors are fully aware that many Companies are put upon the market with large capitals which have not given satisfactory results, and have deterred intending investors from again embarking in gold mining speculations. In this instance, however, every POSSIBLE FACILITY will be given to those desirous of seeing the property prior to investing.

There is a powerful Crushing Machine on the ground, and there will be no delay in converting the stone raised into cash, which will be available for IMMEDIATE DIVIDENDS.

20,000 shares are held as a reserve to found the future working capital of the Company, to be issued at the discretion of the Directors, out of the proceeds of which the sum of £5000 is to be paid to the proprietors to partly reimburse them for the value of the mine.

THIS VERY VALUABLE PROPERTY consists of eight 40-acre consecutive blocks, south of the celebrated PEABODY MINE, the ore from which has smelted 80 per cent. of copper.

The SPECIAL advantages in this Company are the very LIBERAL TERMS upon which it is placed before the public, and the large area of ground over which it extends being nearly A MILE AND A HALF in extent, on the line of lode, which fact, taken in conjunction with the richness of the ore and being easy of access to the Sydney market, makes it one of the MOST VALUABLE Copper mines in the colony.

Dividends payable upon all shares alike, irrespective of the amount paid.

Surface Specimens, containing PURE COPPER, can be inspected at the office of the Broker, to whom application for shares is necessary to be made immediately.

BROKERS:
Thomas Garrett, Greville's Rooms; William Westgarth, 14, Spring-street.

£1000 to be placed to the credit of the Company for working capital.

The property of the proposed Company will consist of 240 ACRES of land, north of and adjoining the valuable and celebrated PEABODY COPPER MINE and others, and is acknowledged to be superior in point of richness to any of the copper-bearing land in that famous locality. The lode has been traced running north and south through the whole extent of the land; and the proprietors can confidently recommend this venture as one of the best investments ever offered to the Sydney public.

The cost of carriage of the ore to Sydney will not exceed £5 per ton.

Nearly one-half of the shares have already been privately applied for, and it is necessary that immediate application should be made for the remaining shares at the disposal of the Brokers.

Prospectuses may be had from the undersigned, who are authorised by the proprietors to receive deposits and issue receipts for same; from whom all information can be obtained.

N.B.—Smeltings of the ore from the "Peabody" Mine yielded as high as EIGHTY PER CENT. OF COPPER.

PROPOSED COPPER COMPANY in the FORT BOURKE DISTRICT, near MOUNT COBAR.

The undersigned has negotiations pending, that will enable him to place before the public, within a fortnight, the most extensive and valuable COPPER property in the Australian colonies.

The delay is only occasioned by having to send to Bourke to arrange for the merging of several interests into one large company.

It is only needful now to state that, though the acquisition of some very rich lots will necessitate a nominal capital of perhaps £150,000, in £1 shares, still the payments on application and allotment will not exceed 4s on each share of the 75,000 to be offered to the public, and that after all claims are satisfied there will be some £3000 at the credit of the company wherewith to carry on operations, more than double the sum as yet expended on the Cobar, which mine has produced £10,000 worth of copper, and the shares of which have risen from £10 to £235.

With the sum of £3000 at the credit of the proposed company it is most improbable that any further call will ever be made, as the facilities for converting the ore into money, are identical in every respect with those enjoyed by the Cobar and Fort Bourke companies.

The undersigned is prepared to give the fullest information with reference to the projected company, and will receive applications for shares, but no deposit payment will be required until the issue of the prospectus, when allotment will be made according to priority of applications.

Such information can be given, as without detracting in the least from the acknowledged great value of the adjacent copper properties, will stamp the one about to be offered with unequalled prospective advantages.

FORT BOURKE COPPER MINING CO. (Limited).

A MEETING of the Shareholders in the above Company is hereby convened for THIS (TUESDAY) AFTERNOON, at 4 o'clock, at Horner's Hotel, Wynyard-square, for the purpose of electing Trustees, appointing Legal Manager, &c.

GLEN LODE TIN MINING COMPANY (Limited).

The attention of Shareholders in the above Company is directed to the following Report just received by the Provisional Directors, from Captain Townsend, whom they instructed to prospect and Report upon the Company's property at Glen Creek, near Glen Innes.

"Wellington Vale, July 1st, 1872.

"To the Provisional Directors of the Glen Lode Tin Mining Company.

"Gentlemen,—I have the honour to inform you that I have inspected your ground on Glen Creek, and report as follows:—

"I find there are a series of felspathic granite dykes running throughout the whole of your creek frontage blocks, about in the position of the full dotted lines on tracing, the rest of the country is a hard highly metamorphosed slate; the dykes I observed in many places run into felspathic porphyry, or what in Cornwall is termed elvan, and with which the tin lodes are almost invariably associated. These dykes I think will constitute your lodes, for I find them intersected by small detached veins of quartz which carry tin, and in several instances show crystals of tin sticking in the quartz. These dykes are all underlying northwards.

"The various openings that have been made are—1st. A costean pit on eastern boundary and numbered 1 on tracing. Here I was shown some very good stone, but the vein was small and irregular, and for want of proper tools and powder, too little work had been done for me to say whether it was a spur from a lode (which I think it is) or a portion of the lode itself, where it is pinched up small.

"No. 2 on tracing is a small surface opening from which some good stone has been taken, and in which I could see spots of tin, both black and ruby, standing in the solid. These two openings are on one vein, which I think comes from a heavy dyke of granite a little higher up the hill.

"No. 3 is on a separate and parallel dyke, and which I take to be a continuation of the vein which has supplied the tin which is now being worked by Young and party on the point opposite your blocks Nos. 3 and 4, and which is the best ground as yet opened in the district. In this opening there is what I take to be for the service are those which make what is known as the round voyage. They come out from England with passengers and general cargo, and they go up to the East to seek a remunerative freight home, and they make the intermediate passage a paying one by taking coals. The number of ships thus available is of course limited by the number that come direct from England, and this number is in turn, of course, limited by the Australian demand for English goods. That demand will only increase as our population increases, unless with a greater prosperity we all become richer, and consume so much more per head of imported commodities. Still, in any case, our shipments of coal to foreign ports are dependent in the main on the number of vessels coming here to complete the round voyage, and we cannot, under present circumstances, go beyond that limit. There has, it is true, been a slight exception to this lately in the Californian trade, because a large steamship company, which is a great consumer of Australian coal, found it to its interest to send vessels down in ballast rather than be left with a short supply. But this was a novelty and an isolated case, and nothing of the kind has happened in the Eastern trade. The fact remains, and will remain, that our export of coal is not dependent on our capacity for production, nor upon its quality, the excellence of which is now well recognised, but mainly on the number of ships leaving for Asiatic ports and for those on the west coast of America. Year by year this trade may be expected to grow naturally, but on the other hand if the scheme, which is for the present in abeyance, of running large screw liners from England to Australia should be effectively carried out, it will knock many sailing vessels out of the trade. The number of ships bringing cargo from England will be proportionally diminished, and the number ready to take away coal will be diminished in the same ratio.

The editor of the Mining Journal thinks that we might make ourselves altogether independent of sailing vessels, by establishing a line of screw colliers between our Australian Newcastle and the Eastern ports, and that by that means we could keep those ports constantly supplied at a price that would defy English competition. The difficulty, however, is to find a return freight. It has never yet been found profitable to run steamers with freight only one way, and in ballast for the return voyage. The commodities we principally import from the East are tea and sugar, and neither of these are very bulky articles compared to their value. One cargo of tea would pay for a good many cargoes of coal, and freights each way would by no means balance each other. Our contemporary, however, seems to think that a certain freight one way, with a chance of anything on the return voyage, would of itself prove remunerative, at any rate to the collieries, which might unite their strength to establish such a line in their common interest; in which suggestion, however, he seems to have overlooked the fact that the collieries might not be able to see that they had a common interest, or be able to combine for any purpose whatever. Still the suggestion seems to be one well worth considering by those concerned, for there can be no doubt to make the Eastern consumption of our coal large and certain, instead of its being, as at present, irregular and comparatively small, would add immensely to the prosperity of Newcastle, and to the commercial and maritime status of New South Wales generally.

In the same number of the Mining Journal we find it stated that in Cornwall there seems to be no apprehension that the reported discoveries of tin in Australia will materially affect the market, at least for a long time to come, and tin mining in Cornwall has been stimulated by the demand, and a degree of energetic vigour which seems to proceed on the presumption that Cornwall is to retain as large a relative share in the trade as it has been accustomed to have. Perhaps the good folks in Cornwall are basing their expectations somewhat in ignorance, and do not yet know what "the reported discoveries of tin in Australia" are going to turn out—a fact, the more probable, seeing we do not as yet know it ourselves. We certainly do know, however, that the yield of stream tin is likely for a time to be very considerable. We have not yet found out the full number of our tin-bearing streams, still less do we know the extent of our tin-bearing lodes; but what we do know is that for a great many miles in length tin-bearing streams are now being worked; and when the proprietors, who are still new to their vocation, begin to operate with vigour, the quantity of tin ore shipped annually from Sydney will be very large. What effect our export, when it reaches its maximum, will have upon the market but of the world, we cannot yet tell; it must be remembered that the Australian discovery is not being paralleled by similar discoveries in other parts of the world, where the metal can be produced of equal quality and with equal cheapness. There is one more source of supply; but, as far as we know, that is all. The causes that brought down the value of copper from £120 to £70 a ton are not, at present at least, in operation as regards tin; and it is a question whether the Australian supply will do more than meet the growing demand. On this point it is premature at present to speak positively, but in any case the price of tin seems likely to rule at a figure that will leave a handsome margin of profit on the Australian projects.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.—The following were the successful candidates at the late Civil service Examinations:—Crommelin, James Dennis, Ragar, Edwards, Halligan, Jaques, King, M'Keown, M'Kern, Moran, Moriarty, Murphy, Charles N. Payten, Raymond, Staunton, Tuke, Wallis, and James Williams.

PRESENTATION.—A deputation, headed by Mr. W. Cordeaux, J.P., waited upon Mr. F. R. Wilshire, P.M., at the Court-house, Berrima, and presented him, on behalf of the residents of Scone, with an address, a handsome silver salver, and a purse of sovereigns.

TELEGRAMS FROM ENGLAND.—It is somewhat remarkable that a statement has been circulated that Reuter has a monopoly of the British Australian Company's wire. The report is as unfounded as anything can possibly be, and has a complete refutation in the fact that a number of messages to private firms came to hand last week at the same rate as the "Associated Press" had to pay for their message.

CANCERITES, Coughs, Colds, Pains in the Chest, Shortness of Breath, Phlegm.—Two of Dr. Locock's Pulmonic Wafers give immediate relief, and nothing else gives such a sound refreshing night's rest; in rheumatic and nervous pains they act like a charm. Sold by all druggists.—ADV.

BUSH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.—A meeting for prayer to God on behalf of this society and its objects was held last evening in the hall at the rear of the new school-rooms connected with the Pitt-street Congregational Church. The attendance was not very numerous. The chair was occupied by the Rev. Mr. Browne, of Petersham; and among others the Rev. Messrs. Lloyd and Green took part in the proceedings. Mr. Fincham, one of the bush missionaries, gave a very interesting narrative of a late journey of his to the Western Goldfields, and from thence northwards to Liverpool Plains; and of the incidents connected with his journey homewards as far as Pine Ridge, close to which place his horse got knocked up. Mr. Fincham described at some length that branch of his labours which comprises the distribution of religious literature, stating that many excellent works of that character found a ready sale; but deprecating the prevalence of cheap and gaudy-looking novels, and productions which came under the title of a gutter "literature," in some of the homesteads which he visited in his travels. The proceedings closed with prayer.

THE FUNERAL TRAIN.—The funeral train to Hasleam Creek on Sunday afternoon was unusually crowded with passengers. Several additional carriages had to be attached for their accommodation at the last moment, and there was in consequence a delay of a quarter of an hour beyond the usual hour of departure. When the train reached the incline at the Cemetery it gradually came to a standstill, the engine not having sufficient power to draw it up. A large number of the passengers alighted and walked to the station, a distance of three or four hundred yards; and the locomotive then drew the carriages up the hill. The train arrived safely in Sydney about half an hour after the ordinary time.

MISSIONARY LIFE IN THE NEW HEBRIDES.—Yesterday evening, the Rev. J. Cosh, M.A., at St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church in Macquarie-street, delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on Missionary life in the New Hebrides. Prayer having been offered by the Rev. Dr. Steel, the pastor of the church, Dr. Moon (the chairman) introduced the lecturer to the audience. The lecturer began by stating that he proposed to give a sketch of a missionary's life in the New Hebrides, one which would be practically descriptive of all its varied phases; its difficulties, its trials, its joys, and its sorrows. After an animated and striking picture of the precise kind of man required—physically, intellectually, and morally qualified for the arduous and responsible life of a Missionary—Mr. Cosh proceeded to point out some of the peculiarities of the New Hebridean group. He said it was, as a place of residence, very different from New South Wales and the islands of Polynesia Proper, not only as a country, but as a community. The people in the New Hebrides (except at Aniteum) were all heathen; there was not even a nominal profession of Christianity. The sole work of the missionaries in the group had hitherto been pioneering work—everything to begin, but not without some promise of an eventual success. The rev. lecturer detailed the particular difficulties by which the missionary found himself surrounded when he first reached the island station assigned to him; how he had not only to do his own work, but to make (as it were) the very tools to labour with. The nature of the missionary's difficulties in acquiring the language of the particular sept or tribe amongst whom his lot was cast were instructively stated; those difficulties being enhanced by that singular diversity of language which has been remarked upon as incidental to the Melanesian race. The lecturer described how, step by step, these difficulties were grappled with and overcome, how the Scriptures (or portions thereof) were translated, &c. The way in which the missionary had to build up his house, and teach the natives to aid him in that task, was pleasingly described; the difficulties as regarded the treatment of the sick with fever and ague, and the difficulties arising from petty thefts and jealousy of the natives. It was a dangerous time for the missionaries when epidemics were raging down there, for the New Hebrideans were prone to attribute all such sickness to the effect of sorcery. He believed this delusion to have been the cause of the violent death of the Rev. Mr. Gordon, at Erromanga. The lecturer explained how the missionaries of the New Hebrides assembled annually at Aniteum for a week, to confer with each other as to the progress of their work. A vote of thanks was awarded by acclamation at the conclusion of the lecture.

ST. VINCENT'S BALL.—The ball at the Exhibition building, in aid of the funds of St. Vincent's Hospital, takes place this evening. His Excellency the Governor and the Hon. Lady Robinson will be present. Every arrangement has been made that the ball shall pass off with eclat. We are informed that a large number of tickets have been disposed of, and a good sum will be added to the funds of this estimable philanthropic institution.

SPURIOUS GOLD.—About 11 o'clock on Tuesday (says the Rockhampton Bulletin), a "Heathen Chinee," with a "smile that was childlike and bland," entered the Union Bank, and tendered a parcel of gold, which he said was the produce of New Zealand Gully, Mr. Darroch, the teller, turned the sample into the gold scoop, and then into the scale. Its weight was 1 oz. 10 dwts. 4 grs., and the seller received its presumed value, £5 5s. 6d., after duly signing the purchase-book. Meanwhile the gold, having a suspicious look, had been under examination; and just after John had left the bank, Mr. Darroch followed him, a messenger being also dispatched for the police. Overtaking his man in East-street, Mr. Darroch asked him to come back to the bank, which he did. On reaching there, one of the nuggets was cut in two, and John found himself "trumped" in the game he did not understand; for sergeant Judge was in attendance, and, with such evidence of criminal intent, did not hesitate to place him beyond the reach of further mischief. The mechanical part of the fraud was very cleverly perpetrated, as the spurious nuggets had all the appearance of waterworn gold. We are sorry to learn that other parcels of the same character have been purchased by unsuspecting buyers, and some anxiety is felt by those interested for their next Mint returns from Sydney. Mr. Ireland, a storekeeper at New Zealand Gully, is one of the victims; and he was quite unconscious of the swindle until from a parcel of 4 oz. offered by him to Mr. H. Beed, that gentleman smelted nearly half an ounce of dross, and 17 dwts. of a metal resembling lead in appearance, but harder and much more brittle.

THE STATES OPERA TROUPE.—The performance of "Il Babiere," on Saturday night almost betermed an improvement on its previous representations, as the artists were in better voice. Throughout the evening there was a running fire of applause, and four times the principals were called before the curtain. Verdi's grand tragic opera, "Un Ballo," which became a favourite with the Sydney public the first night it was performed here, now some three years ago was given last evening in a style that well sustained the reputation of the troupe, considering that it was the first time they appeared together in a work so difficult, and in which the composer has, in a large degree, rendered the choral and scenic departments so necessary to attract the public. From what Madame States has achieved in other operas requiring the talent of a great prima donna, the audience were evidently in expectation of seeing the role of Adele rendered with justice to the greatest maestro of the Italian school; and they were not disappointed, as in every act they enjoyed acting and singing such as would place the cantatrice in the front rank amongst the lyric actresses of the day. Mrs. Fox as Edgardo, dresses with great taste, and though a little nervous in the first two acts, she made up for it during the latter portion of the opera, and sang very effectively in the fourth act. The Ulrica of Miss Chambers is known here as a great histrionic performance. The author has not made great demands upon the vocal powers of the representative of the part, but the little requires a fine actress, and Miss Chambers possesses the requisite qualification. Signor Orlandini's Ricardo eclipsed anything he has appeared in here, not merely in acting or in singing, though taken separately, no baritone ever heard here sustained a character more perfectly; and when, as was the case last evening, the two essentials for a complete operatic representation were combined, no audience could do less than testify its approval in as marked a manner as the furore created by his singing of the aria in the fourth act. Signor Susini and Mr. Farley had a difficult task to efface the remembrance of two bass profundos, who appeared here first as Toramano and Samuelo, though their abilities were equal to the occasion; and in the concerted portions they were heard to advantage. Signor Cecchi, as Ricardo, was not as good as usual, and the "E scherzo" failed to secure its usual imperative demands for a repetition. To-night the season closes with a farewell performance of "Don Pasquale" one of the finest representations given by the troupe. Signor Susini in the title role is so great that those who have seen him in it before will be pleased to have another opportunity of witnessing it. A complimentary benefit tendered to the talented maestro al piano, Signor Giorza, is to take place on Thursday night; and on Saturday evening the principal members of the company will appear at the Victoria Theatre for the benefit of Mr. Wilson prior to their final departure from Sydney.

RIFLE SHOOTING.—No. 5 Company 1st S.B.V.R. Rifle Club.—The members of this club have had two matches this year, both with the Henry rifle. So far the average shooting does not much exceed that with the Enfield; but no doubt as the members get more accustomed to the weapon they will be able to give a better account of themselves. The first match was fired on the 11th May, with variable wind and fine weather; the second match on the 29th June, with a light N.E. wind and a very dull afternoon. It will be seen that Sergeant Gee heads the list on both occasions. The terms of the matches are as follows:—Prize shooting quarterly. The winner of first prize handicapped 3 points; second prize, 2 points; third prize, 1 point. Handicaps not cumulative above 3 points. The above handicap is only for the current year, hence in the first match all started even. The following are the scores of the prize winners:—

HAY.—We learn by electric telegraph that a dinner was given by the principal inhabitants, on Saturday evening, to Mr. Sub-inspector Geraghe, who is leaving the district, as a testimony to his meritorious conduct while in charge of the police there.

PEDIGREE STOCK.—Three shorthorn bulls and three cows, as well as a Hereford bull and a Hereford cow ex Acadia, are now to be seen at Mr. Buchan Thomson's stables. These arrivals have been imported on account of Mr. C. H. E. Chauvel, of Tabulam.

TAHITI.—We are in receipt of the Messager de Tahiti (edition pour l'Exterieur) of the 1st May. This paper states that at Tahiti a subscription is being made (as at Noumea) in favour of the French War Indemnity Fund. It also republishes a number of ordinances for the Government of the colony, but the matters referred to are of but very limited (local) interest. The same paper also contains a variety of statistics of no great importance.

NEW SOUTH WALES ACADEMY OF ART.—The monthly meeting of the council of "The New South Wales Academy of Art" assembled yesterday afternoon, pursuant to notice, in the Librarian's Room, at the Free Public Library, in Bent-street, Mr. E. L. Montefiore (the vice-president of the Academy) being in the chair. There was an unusually full attendance. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read by the honorary secretary, Mr. R. Reeve, were confirmed by the council, and signed by the chairman. The vice-president read a letter received from the honorary secretary to "The Victorian Academy of Art," relative to the time when the next exhibitions of the two societies should be held. Mutual suggestions had, it appeared, been made by the executive officers of both societies, with a view to obviating the inconveniences of both being very possibly held at the same time. After some discussion of a conversational character, the council came to the conclusion that it would be better for them to wait for a short time, until the result of an expected special meeting of the Victorian Academy should have been duly reported to them by friends to their common cause in the adjacent colony. The honorary Secretary reported that the water-colour drawings and paintings transmitted from Victoria and New Zealand, for the late exhibition of the Academy, had been properly accounted for and returned. Accounts, which had accrued since the last meeting of the council, were next brought forward, considered, and ordered for payment. The Secretary drew the attention of the council to the fact that several steps had been taken by the President, Vice-President, himself, and other members of the council, for carrying out the classification of "The Sydney school of Design" as an Art Training School—according to the terms of the 5th minute of the proceedings of the council, agreed to on the 6th of June. The Vice-President said he was also very happy to be able to report that the Trustees of the Australian Museum had kindly consented to allow the students of "the Sydney School of Design and Art Training School" (affiliated to the "Academy"), to assemble for their studies upon antique sculpture, &c., at the Museum, under the instruction of Mr. Thomas Hodgson, the superintendent of studies, and his assistants. Other cooperation and aid, of a very encouraging character, was reported, and commented upon; general satisfaction being expressed as to the prospects of the above-named school. The vice-president and secretary were directed to purchase casts—not more than twelve or less than six—for the use of the advanced students. The casts were to be made according to the directions and plans supplied by Mr. Hodgson, the principal of the school. The vice-president reported that his Excellency Sir Hercules Robinson had, on the 11th of June, kindly consented to act as patron to the "Academy," and had, at the same time, been pleased to manifest a decided interest in the objects of the society. Mr. Montefiore also reported that Mr. Cave Thomas (the well-known English historical painter) had kindly consented to draw the design for the "certificate" granted, and to be granted, by the Academy. Mr. Cave Thomas had written from England to say that he had not yet decided as to whether it would be best to reproduce this intended design by the autotype process or by lithography. He would, however, write and let the council know at the very earliest opportunity. On the motion of the Vice-President, seconded by Mr. Wallis, it was unanimously resolved that the minimum of attendance of members to be required to form a quorum should be reduced from five to three. The council adjourned for a month.

THE CAT STILL IN THE NAVY.—On Saturday morning, at 8 o'clock (says the Auckland Herald of the 24th ultimo), "all hands on deck to witness punishment," was piped on board H.M.S. Rosario, and a couple of her men received three dozen each at the gangway. We are not aware of the nature of the offences, but they must have been of a very serious nature, as flogging in port is extremely unusual.

PIRATING PLAYS.—In a private letter received in Melbourne from England, discoursing on theatrical matters, the writer says that American agents are regularly engaged in London in procuring pirated copies of unpublished successful plays. They think nothing of bribing a prompter with £50 to transcribe a play, which is presently produced and printed in America without even an acknowledgment of the author's name.

STICKING-UP.—The Forbes correspondent of the Western Examiner states that another case of sticking-up occurred on Saturday evening, on the road between Forbes and the Bushman's Lead, and about ten miles from the former place. Mr. Brown, of Grenfell or Junee, was proceeding to Bushman's, when he was pounced upon by three armed men, who robbed him of about £5 in cash, and then tied him to a stump where he was found in about three hours after by a carrier, and of course liberated. The poor fellow came to Forbes to get some application to ease his sore and benumbed arms.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—A very serious accident which might have terminated fatally (the Murrumbidgee Times relates) happened to a man at Warrah. It appears he was working a circular saw, and a large splinter flew off and struck him just under the shoulder, and proceeded through the fleshy part over the collar bone and came out above the breast bone. Dr. Wood was immediately sent for, who had the poor fellow removed to the Murrumbidgee Hospital, where he now lies. The wound is, of course, a very bad one, but we understand that the patient is progressing favourably.

A PLAGUE OF HORSES.—Since the practice of leg-fencing the runs in the Braidwood district commenced, observes the Irispatch, a marked change has been observed in the number of impoundings. It is said that upwards of 700 head of horses have been turned off the Bedervale estate. Many of these have trespassed on the smaller lessees of the Church and School estate, and last week Messrs. King and Bell impounded some 200 head, and it is said Messrs. Bunn and M'Dowall expect to place a similar number in the yards. Numbers of these horses are bought out of the pound for boiling down purposes, and are thus effectually stopped from going back on the runs. It is somewhat remarkable that the fencing-in of larger runs should compel the holders of the smaller runs to commence impounding, and it is said that before long all the smaller lessees of sections of Church lands will be obliged to thus rid themselves of the troops of horses which are daily being turned out of the large paddocks.

COACH ACCIDENT.—The removal of the bridge rails at the northern approach (says the Wagga Advertiser of Saturday), very nearly produced, on Wednesday morning last, the fatal results that everyone has predicted. The Junee mail coach started at the usual hour, fortunately without passengers, and on arrival at the bridge the driver was cautioned by the toll-keeper and several bystanders not to attempt crossing, as it was dangerous. A rapid stream, fully up to a horse's girths, was rushing across the approach; the side rails had been removed, and on the previous evening several persons had nearly paid the penalty of their temerity in attempting the passage with their lives. The driver, however, persisted in crossing, and putting his horses into a gallop entered the foaming torrent at full speed. In an instant the horses were swept from their feet, the coach upset, and both unceremoniously hurdled over the side into the flood. Here the coach luckily got snagged on a post, which stopped its further progress, but one of the horses was drowned, and the other, having been with some difficulty and danger unharnessed, managed to swim and scramble on shore. The mailman was taken off his uncomfortable perch by a boat, and the mails were also rescued with no further damage than a good soaking.

MELANCHOLY DEATH FROM EXPOSURE.—On Monday last (the Bathurst Times reports) a child named Thomas Charlton, son of Philip Charlton—a shepherd in the employ of Mr. Boland, at the Limekilns—met his death under very melancholy circumstances. It appears that on Saturday the poor little fellow (who was between 6 and 7 years of age) was in charge of some old sheep in the vicinity of his father's hut, and somehow managed to wander away from home. He was first missed about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and immediate search was instituted, but no trace of him was found up till a late hour in the evening, although the cries of a child were heard near Mr. Goold's. Early on Sunday morning the search was resumed by several of the residents of the Limekilns, but with the same unsuccessful result, and another night passed over without the boys' whereabouts being discovered. When the cries were heard near Goold's on Saturday night they were supposed to have proceeded from young Charlton, but no answer was returned to one or two men who went into the bush and "cooeyed." On Monday morning, however, search was made in the vicinity of Goold's place, and about 9 o'clock the child was found dead a quarter of a mile from the house. Both on Saturday and Sunday it was intensely cold and wet, and as the deceased must have been without food for nearly three days and two nights it was scarcely surprising that he should have succumbed at last to cold and hunger. The boy's father was in very poor circumstances and the deceased was miserably clad—having on neither boots nor socks and only a thin ragged dress. On Monday, at daylight, he had been seen by a shepherd, who called out to him to come into the hut, but the little wanderer, who was then apparently frightened and much exhausted, ran away. This was the last time the deceased was seen alive. Information was brought into the police, and senior-constable Sutton, who was sent out, had the body conveyed first to Mr. Combes's sawmills on the Wisburndale, and afterwards into Bathurst, where an inquest was held at Mr. Bolton's, on Wednesday. The evidence of Dr. Bassett showed that death resulted from exposure, and a verdict was given to that effect.

FOOTBALL.—The University and Wallaroo match was postponed, on account of the rain, to the 3rd August. A scratch game was played instead on the M. and C. ground, and kept up with great spirit till dark.

A NEW FEVER IN INDIA.—The Times of India, of May 31, states that a new and most excruciatingly painful disease—dengue fever—has been generally prevalent throughout India and British Burmah. In Calcutta, Poona, and all over Guzerat, few Europeans have escaped the "break bone" fever; and in the former city business was for a time seriously affected by it—so much so, indeed, that an application was made to have the High Court closed for a week, because counsel, attorneys, and suitors were all down with it. The Hanoom papers apologised to their readers for the scantiness of their original matter, because editors and contributors alike were unable to write; and in Guzerat the fever has been so prevalent that, "Have you had the dengue?" has passed into a common form of salutation. Imperfect quarantine arrangements at Bombay are blamed for introducing dengue into India, which, after having attacked the officers and crew of a Bombay Marine steamship that brought troops here from Aden, spread like wildfire all over the country. It is now, we are thankful to say, to some extent dying out. Referring briefly to the weather, we may remark that here in Bombay the season has not been such a fearfully hot one as was anticipated: nearly all day long the heat is tempered by a strong sea-breeze. But, in other parts of India—more particularly the north-west provinces—the heat is described as something terrific. Cases of sunstroke and heat apoplexy are very frequent; it is impossible for a European to venture out of doors after 9 in the morning, while life in-doors, even with punkahs and kus-kus tatties, is well-nigh insupportable; birds and small animals take refuge inside houses and will not be driven out, and crows have actually been known to drop off trees through sheer exhaustion. However, the monsoon is fast approaching, and when it comes panting Anglo-Indians will be relieved for a time from cholera, small-pox, dengue, and a temperature of 100° in the shade.

SMALL-POX AND QUARANTINE.

THE intelligence that reached Sydney to the effect that small-pox had made its appearance in New Zealand and Melbourne, and also that a decided case of this infectious disease had occurred on board the steamer Hero, from Auckland, which vessel arrived at Newcastle on Friday, has led to prompt action on the part of the Government. Steps were taken yesterday morning to quarantine vessels arriving from California, the Sandwich Islands, New Zealand, and Melbourne. The authorities were active in their search after the passengers of the Hero who landed in Sydney on Saturday morning, and we believe have succeeded in placing most, if not all of them in quarantine. The vessel arrived here at 5 o'clock yesterday evening, and was at once taken to the Quarantine station. A Government Gazette extraordinary was issued yesterday afternoon, containing proclamations for preventing communication with vessels arriving from California, Sandwich Islands, New Zealand, and Melbourne, and also the "Laws of Quarantine," which will be found in our advertising columns. Under these proclamations, ships coming from the colonies of New Zealand and Victoria will be subject to the same Quarantine regulations as vessels coming from ports "beyond the seas"—that is they will be taken to the Quarantine Station inside North Head; vessels from California and Sandwich Islands will in every instance be detained there for at least seven days. The Government steamer Thetis took down the Hero's passengers, and will, we understand, remain in North Harbour as a sort of lazarette.

The following are the Proclamations:—

"Proclamation by his Excellency Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, Knight, Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same: Whereas information has been received by the Government that small-pox has made its appearance in the colony of New Zealand and in the colony of Victoria: Now, therefore, I, Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, the Governor of the colony of New South Wales aforesaid, in pursuance of the powers in me vested by the Act of Council, 3 William IV., No. 1, do, with the advice of the Executive Council, hereby order and direct that, as it is probable the said small-pox may be brought from the said places to this colony, all ships or vessels arriving in this colony from the said State of California, or the Sandwich Island group, or from any part or place thereof, or having touched at any port or place thereof; and all boats belonging to the said ships or vessels, and all boats having received any person or thing from such ships or vessels, and all persons, goods, wares, merchandise, and other articles whatsoever, coming, or brought in, or being on board such ships, vessels, or boats, shall in every case perform quarantine for a period of not less than seven days,—such period to be extended as may be found necessary in any particular case, by any order to be made by the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council. Given under my hand and the Seal of the Colony, at Government House, Sydney, this eighth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and in the thirty-sixth year of her Majesty's reign. By his Excellency's command, W. B. PIDDINGTON."

"Proclamation by his Excellency Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, Knight, Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the colony of New South Wales and its Dependencies, and Vice-Admiral of the same: Whereas information has been received by the Government that small-pox is prevalent in the State of California, and in the Sandwich Island Group: Now, therefore, I, Sir Hercules George Robert Robinson, the Governor of the colony of New South Wales aforesaid, in pursuance of the powers in me vested by the Act of Council, 3 William IV., No. 1, do, with the advice of the Executive Council, hereby order and direct that, as it is probable the said small-pox may be brought from the said places to this colony, all ships or vessels arriving in this colony from the said State of California, or the Sandwich Island group, or from any part or place thereof, or having touched at any port or place thereof; and all boats belonging to the said ships or vessels, and all boats having received any person or thing from such ships or vessels, and all persons, goods, wares, merchandise, and other articles whatsoever, coming, or brought in, or being on board such ships, vessels, or boats, shall in every case perform quarantine for a period of not less than seven days,—such period to be extended as may be found necessary in any particular case, by any order to be made by the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council. Given under my hand and the Seal of the Colony, at Government House, Sydney, this eighth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and in the thirty-sixth year of her Majesty's reign.—By his Excellency's command, W. B. PIDDINGTON."

The municipal authorities have also taken action, and yesterday the following circular was forwarded to each medical practitioner in Sydney:—

"Town Hall, Health-Office, July, 1872.

"Sir,—Would you kindly inform me of any case of small-pox occurring in your practice, or coming within your knowledge, in order that proper measures may be taken by the city authorities to prevent its spreading.

"Information relative to any epidemic, as well as nuisances likely to produce or propagate disease is specially requested.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

"G. F. DANSEY, City Health-officer."

The following particulars have been furnished to us by our Newcastle correspondent:—

"Considerable alarm and excitement was occasioned yesterday morning by a rumour spreading throughout the town that small-pox had broken out on board the s.s. Hero, which had arrived the evening previously from Auckland, New Zealand. The fact of the mails and several passengers having landed and proceeded to Sydney the evening of arrival caused many conjectures and surmises. It was with the utmost difficulty that any definite information could be obtained.

"After considerable inquiry, I was enabled to learn the following particulars. It appears that on Saturday morning Captain Logan requested Dr. Samuel Knaggs to visit a steerage passenger on board the steamship Hero, who was reported to be very ill, suffering from a bad leg and blotches over his body. The doctor was requested to examine the man, and report if he were in a fit state to proceed on the voyage with the vessel, or if it would be advisable to land him at once and put him into the hospital. After briefly examining the case, and asking the patient a few questions, the doctor called Captain Logan on one side and asked him if he had heard of any cases of small-pox before leaving Auckland. To the reply was 'Yes,' a man had died of it in Auckland before the Hero had left. Dr. Knaggs then stated that he believed the case to be one of small-pox, but would not take on himself the responsibility of declaring such to be the case without consulting the health officer of the port. Dr. Bowker was at once communicated with, who promptly attended, and the two medical gentlemen then thoroughly examined the case, and after a consultation decided that it was small-pox. The health-officer (Dr. Bowker) lost no time in communicating with the Government, and the result was, orders were received to place the Hero in quarantine at once. Mr. Nihl, tide waiter, hastened to carry out the instructions, and was ably assisted by sergeant ential, as extremes. New crop will be in the market by the 1st of June.

Oats.—The offerings are light, and holders firm within the range of 1.60 dollar to 1.75 dollar. Nothing sales for the week, 4000 sacks.

Corn.—The demand falls short of the supply, with 1.40 to 1.45 dollar to 1.45 dollar per cental, for mixed, to choice white.

Tallow.—The Australian steamer brought no cable. Market firm at 9 cents.

Building Materials.—Resident dealers have recently advanced their jobbing prices, by reason of heavier freights. The market for Puget Sound lumber is firm, with stocks here fairly, higher prices having to be paid for logs, owing to the withdrawal of Government lands for the railroad. Prices at Puget Sound are:—For rough lumber and timber, 10 to 12 dollars; dressed flooring, 18 to 20 dollars. These are cargo rates. Prices from ship at San Francisco are:—Redwood, 12 to 14 dollars; dressed, 25 to 27 dollars; spruce, 17 to 18 dollars; redwood, 17 to 18 dollars for rough and dressed; lathe, 2.75 to 3 dollars; shingles, 2.50 to 2.75 dollars per thousand.

Coal.—Arrivals include several cargoes from New South Wales (950 tons ex Meigunyer, 1473 tons per Thatcher Megoun, now on the market; 1230 tons Wallsend, ex Alcestus, sold prior to arrival at 13 dollars. There is no special demand at present, for the reason that all later consumers have liberal stocks here and to arrive, have been and are large importers of Sydney upon their own account, while the local city demand is freely supplied by coast mines. Coos Bay, Seattle, &c.—at 11 dollars from ship's side; Nanaimo, 12 dollars.

MINING.

MONDAY EVENING.

THE market has opened with a fair demand for copper and tin shares. In the former, we note that the recently opened mines in the Bourke district are commanding attention, and sales of the South Cobar shares were made to-day at 2s. 9d. to 3s. Western Peak Downs in demand at 3s. to 3s. 3d., and business in Normanby at 21s., 21s. 9d., and 22s. Elsmore tin continue very firm, with buyers at 11s. 6d.; Queensland sold at 9d. premium; Mount Mitchell Proprietory at 15s. x. d. The demand for gold shares is still confined to a few companies. Krohmans and Beyers and Holtermanns changed hands at the closing rates of last week. Rapps are recovering a little; sales at 13s. to 13s. 6d. Hustler's Extended are down to 5. Band and Albion sold at £5 3s.

The Peak Downs Company received 91 tons of copper to-day from their mine.

The share list of the Great Cemetery Tin Mining Company has been closed.

The Copper Hill Company has been floated, and at a meeting of shareholders held to-day Messrs. A. Harcourt, J. M. Hazeland, O. Montefiore, G. Riedt, and F. L. Edwards were elected directors. A satisfactory report has been received from Captain Lukey, who examined the company's property.

A report received from Glen Innes respecting the Glen Lode Company's ground will be found in the advertising columns.

Two promoters' tin companies have been floated privately by Mr. J. F. Burns, who also sold to-day two large blocks of tin-bearing land on terms reserved.

Armstrong Gold Mining Company.—The local manager, Mr. Joshua Vickery, reports that the tunnel is now driven 267 feet, but the soil is very hard; and the contractors think they are on the foot wall of Brandt's vein. A shaft was commenced on 10th June, to cut Eisenstadter's vein. The men have logged up, fixed windlass and fly, and are down 9 feet.

The secretary of the Mount Coora Mining Company reports:—"The following telegram is just to hand from the mining manager:—'Lode in Arthur's shaft improved—larger and richer.'"

Messrs. Hoskins and Day report the receipt of 38 bags of tin ore, ex City of Brisbane, from the Sapphire Tin Mining Company's ground, Ruby Creek. They have sold it at £75 per ton.

Ancient Briton Tin Mining Company.—The manager (R. Brickwood) reports that the men have arrived, but I am disappointed at the non-arrival of the teams with the plant, which Potts advises as having started on June 15; this will delay us for a short time, but I shall keep the men preparing the ground, cutting races, and building mate, so that when the plant arrives we shall at once commence to wash out. We have plenty of water, and the ground is black with tin. You can scarcely perceive where the tin ton has been taken from, and it will not be long before there is another out, and on the way to Sydney. All who visit the mine are surprised at the richness of the ground, and say there is nothing to exceed it on the creek.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—As there is an omission in your report of the proceedings of a meeting of the Parramatta Municipal Council, published in the Herald on Wednesday last, will you allow me to state that the following motion, which does not appear in your report, was moved by myself, seconded by Alderman Pye, and put to the meeting by his Worship the Mayor,—"That the 400 yards of blue metal screenings (or rather stuff supplied as such), at 6s. 6d. per yard, a portion of which is now deposited in the Market place, consists, in the opinion of this Council, principally of gravel or dirt, and not worth more than 1s. or 1s. 6d. per yard."

Pennant Hills Road, July 3.

OUR BRISBANE LETTER.

SATURDAY, JULY 6TH.

THE Appropriation Act of 1872 has passed through all its stages in the Legislative Council, and by this time has doubtless received the Vice-regal assent. The Redistribution Bill has gone up to the Upper House for consideration, but it is not anticipated that many alterations will be ventured upon. In this colony the Assembly have hitherto evinced a laudable degree of determination not to allow of much interference by the Council in measures strictly pertaining to themselves, and if any radical changes should be made in the bill, they will doubtless be rejected. As the measure at present stands, it does not appear possible that effect can be given to it until 1874, and this contingency has arisen mainly from the action of the Opposition, who, in the endeavour to provide for the careful compilation of the rolls for the new electorates, have unwittingly postponed its operation. It may happen that amendments will be proposed in the Council by which this defect will be remedied, and if so, the Assembly are not unlikely to accept them; but any alterations involving interference with the main features of the measure will not be acceptable.

When the resolutions for the re-survey of the proposed line between Ipswich and Brisbane came before the Legislative Council on Thursday, an effort was made to elicit from the Postmaster-General some positive assurance that the Government really intended to proceed with the construction of the line after the new survey was made. The attempt was so far satisfactory as to induce the statement that the Government believed the time had come for carrying out the extension, and that it would be commenced as soon as possible. Probably the doubt expressed as to the sincerity of the Government on their railway policy was due to the oft-repeated statement of the Premier that he would be no party to the construction of this line; but circumstances sometimes alter opinions, as well as cases, and Ministers have a very good plea to urge for their change of intentions. The former objection to this work was the impoverished state of the country's finances; now, the colony is in a prosperous and thriving condition, and the objection no longer holds good—hence the revulsion of feeling in favour of extensions.

The Gold Duty Act Amendment Bill—by which the present duty of eighteenpence per ounce will be reduced one-third each year until it is finally swept away—has passed the Assembly without amendment, and been sent up to the Council. A strong endeavour was made to bring about the immediate abolition of the duty, and all the old arguments for and against the tax were repeated during the debate, but the Treasurer carried his point by a majority of 18 to 5. It was stated that, in anticipation of the bill passing, instructions had been issued to subcollectors of Customs to suspend collections of the duty at the full rate after the 1st July.

An attempt made by the Attorney General to pass a measure which would assimilate our law to that of England with regard to the right of married women to hold property in their own names, and secure from the grasp of evil-minded husbands, has met with ignominious failure. The onslaught upon the bill was led by the bachelor portion of the representatives, some of whom thought that it savoured of "sickening sentimentality," while others feared that it would have a tendency to "make women too independent." The ladies did not lack doughty champions in their cause, and, as might be expected, their advocates waxed eloquent, but all to no purpose; the amendment for reading the bill that day six months being carried by a majority of 16 to 11. The Attorney General—himself a bachelor, by the bye—expressed his determination to introduce the measure session after session, as long as he remained in the House, until it became the law of the land.

The Savings' Bank Act Amendment Bill, for reducing the rate of interest paid by Government upon deposits, has caused a great amount of discussion, but very little change will be effected by it after all. Originally, the Treasurer proposed to reduce the rate from 5 to 4 per cent. on sums up to £200, but the diversity of opinion as to what per centage should be allowed was something considerable. Some members argued that it was unnecessary and impolitic to make any alteration in the law; others maintained that existing arrangements tended more to the benefit of capitalists than those classes for whom such banks were established, and that it was unwise to allow the present rate of 5 per cent. on sums over £100. On Wednesday, the Treasurer announced that, in deference to the views which had been expressed by the majority, he was willing to accept an amendment fixing the rate of interest at 5 per cent. up to £100, and 4 per cent. on additional sums up to £500. An amendment upon this was moved by Mr. Heumant to the effect that above £100, and up to £500, the interest should be 2½. This latter amendment was negatived, the Treasurer's compromise was accepted, and the bill was passed through committee with one other alteration, to the purport that it should not have force or effect until the 1st January next. It would not be surprising to find that some alterations in the rates of interest finally adopted are made in the Legislative Council, but there can be no question as to the force of the argument that the industrial classes look more to the safe custody of their deposits than to the rate of interest they may receive. Just now, owing to the rage for speculation, the withdrawals are rather numerous, but not so much so on the part of those classes whom such institutions are principally designed to benefit.

A bill of some importance, and one which promises to be useful if passed, has been introduced by Mr. Griffith, having for its object the simplification of the law with regard to the admission of telegraphic messages as evidence. The measure was very favourably received by the Assembly, and there is every probability of its being adopted by both Houses with some modifications, amongst which may possibly be the legalisation of summonses and writs of capias sent by wire.

The measure introduced by Mr. Thompson, the Minister for Lands, for the amalgamation of the legal professions, has again been brought under discussion. In the course of debate it was broadly stated that there were very few professional men in the colony of either branch who were in favour of the measure, and Mr. Lilley was roundly taken to task for having altogether reversed his views on the question, he having spoken against the bill during a former session, and supported it in the present. As far as can be gathered, the matter is one about which the general public do not care two straws, and, with few exceptions, the legal profession are strongly opposed to it. The debate on the second reading is adjourned until next week; but, as far as present appearances enable one to judge, the bill seems destined for the waste-paper basket.

The arrival of the Indus with a shipload of immigrants has proved to be most opportune, and the rapidity with which the new comers have met with engagements affords convincing proof of the existing demand for labour. A large number came out to join their friends, but the greater majority of free and assisted passengers have had no difficulty in finding employment, and the depot will be empty again in a day or two. The miners who came out in the ship for the Peak Downs Copper Company were not landed here, but were transhipped from the vessel into one of the northern steamers.

The case of Merry v. the Australian Mutual Provident Society has again come before the Supreme Court, and is likely to last for several days. The motion virtually is to set aside the verdict of the jury in the former case, who merely gave the plaintiff damages to the extent of the amount he paid the defendants for the land from which he was ejected, after having erected buildings, and founded a business on the property.

A telegram was received by the Colonial Secretary on Tuesday last, from Viscount Monck, Chairman of the British and Australian Telegraph Company, informing the Queensland Government that the company had resolved, in consequence of the representations made by our Agent-General, to lay a cable at once "from Port Darwin to the mouth of the Norman," so as to communicate with our land line at that point. Reuter's telegram of June 22 states that the company have resolved upon "laying a cable from Java to connect with the Queensland line," so that there is some amount of discrepancy between the two statements. The first, having the stamp of official authority, may most probably be regarded as the most truthful; but it remains to be seen what the South Australian Government will have to say upon the matter. If they are really co-proprietors in the cable from Port Darwin to Java, it is doubtful if they will readily suffer a connection which they have all along been endeavouring to prevent.

Although the winter has hitherto been very mild, Jack Frost is beginning to assert his right to reign during this our coldest month. At an early hour yesterday morning, the thermometer stood at 35° in my house, and I have heard of lower readings. It must be excessively agreeable to the residents of Stanthorpe, where the ice has to be broken before a wash is procurable in the morning, and where several buckets of hot water have to be used before commencing operations with the sluice-boxes. A telegram in this morning's paper states, that there has been ice at Clermont the last two mornings, and reports from other parts of the colony describe the weather as intensely cold. I am not aware that the cane has yet suffered much, but the frost has done mischief to other crops in some localities. As an instance of the variability of our temperature occasionally, I may state that, about a fortnight ago, the thermometer stood at 40° at 6 o'clock in the morning, while at 2 o'clock in the afternoon it read as high as 88° in the shade. Such wide ranges are not at all uncommon, and, strange to say, they do not appear to affect the public health in any way.

MINING NEWS.

GOLD.

CUDGEGONG.—In its report of Saturday, the Guardian says:—The escort left on Thursday, conveying 7224 ounces of gold as the yield for the past fortnight. The amount is equal to our expectations, as the abundance of water in all the dams has enabled every party to keep washing, no matter how remote from water. The extension of the workings of the gold-field is enabling the escort to be kept up to the monthly average of 9000 ounces, which is at least one-half of the whole escort for the Western goldfields. The Home Rule rush concentrates the attention of almost all who are not on gold, and they are more than one half the whole mining population. Owing to the litigation and the serious unsettled dispute, there is little reliable information as that can be gleaned of the prospects of the workings. There are over thirty claims now on payable gold, known to be so; but how many more it would be difficult to say, as, until the dispute between the block and frontage men is settled, claimholders decline to furnish information. There is no doubt but the locality will furnish profitable employment for a large number of miners for a long time to come, and if good luck attend the labours of the several prospecting parties now out in the vicinity, the Home Rule will continue a populous and prosperous suburban working to Gulgong. We have a strong faith in its extent and payable character, which will soon be proved, if all hands are allowed a "fair field and no favour" in testing it. The Shallow Lead, a tributary to the "main run" of the Home Rule, is being profitably worked, but is retarded in its development by the conflicting tribes to the ground. On the Black Lead we have no cheering news to report. Every day's experience proves that some other plan must be devised to have the lead beyond No. 90, north, proved satisfactorily, as the heavy water and hard rock is an effectual bar to the ordinary party of miners coping successfully with the difficulties. The Black Swan Lead still continues to yield payable prospects, and speculation is lively as to how far it will run before it junctions with the Black Lead. The existence of this lead is a curious illustration of the injustice and absurdity of the frontage system. It is rumoured that the Wait-a-While Lead situated to the westward of the Black Lead has struck payable gold. This rumour has found vent several times, but each time not founded on fact. From inquiries the present one is no exception. The Star Lead is under a cloud; the depth, water and rock is proving too much for claim-holders, who prefer the chance of getting a "block" on the Home Rule to slaving away looking for the "Star." The Scandinavian, Young Helvetia, and Marquis of Lorne leads are all much in the same fix; and until a fresh spurt takes place we shall have little to report of them. From the Moonlight Lead we hear of the perseverance of the claimholders to find the lead. No. 11 N. are driving from the edge of the soft reef easterly for the deep ground; the drive being shallow, monkey shafts are being sunk at intervals in the drive to thus prove the ground thoroughly. Hope still beats high on this lead, as from the payable washings of the claims near the prospectors' a natural belief in the existence of a payable lead prevails. In Quartz mining there is nothing fresh to report. Efforts are being made to turn many of the claims into scrip companies; but owing to the dulness of the Share market, success is doubtful. Between quartz-crushings from alluvial claims and stone from quartz claims the Vessels not to pass Pinchgut Island, and persons not to quit vessels until boarded by Health Officer.

VI. No vessel arriving in the Harbour of Port Jackson, from ports beyond the seas, except as provided by the next section hereof, in respect of vessels from the Australian Colonies, shall be brought higher up the Harbour than Pinchgut Island, nor shall any person whatsoever quit such vessel until the same shall have been boarded by the Health Officer, and admitted to pratique; and if any person shall offend against the provisions of this enactment, he shall, on conviction of such offence before any two Justices of the Peace, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding one hundred pounds.

PUBLIC COMPANIES.

PROSPECTUS of the VICTORIA REEF GOLD MINING COMPANY, ADELONG.

Capital, £5000, in 5000 shares of £1 each,
2500 of which are retained by the present Proprietors:
2500 offered to the public on the following terms:—
2s on application, 2s on allotment, the balance as required, in calls of 2s at intervals of not less than two months.
To be Registered under the Limited Liability Act.
☞ Dividends on all shares alike.

Brokers—MELHADO and CURTIS.

This Company is to be formed to work a twelve-acre lease on the Victorian Reef, Adelong, and which, being secured under the new regulations, gives about double the width on the base line of the reef.

The value of this reef is so well known that little requires to be said; but we must call attention to the fact that every claim on it is yielding magnificently. At Williams and Co.'s, the yield varies from six to ten ounces to the ton, and £40,000 has been refused for the claim; M'Cutcheon and Annett's are well known; the Research Company's, next but one to the ground being worked by this Company, is paying from £9 to £10 a share per week; at White's, adjoining on the north, and at Boston and Co.'s, adjoining on the south, the crushings have been very large, as the books at the Adelong crushing-machines show.

The object of the present proprietors, in putting their claim into a company, is as follows:—There are many shafts on the property, the best being about 150 feet down. To carry this to a depth of 300 feet—the depth at which such splendid results are being obtained from the other claims—it is estimated that £600 will be required, and probably no more, as no money will be required for machinery, there being plenty on the ground.

Thus the present proprietors retain half their interest in the claim, and only ask sufficient capital to enable them to pay handsome dividends; and this is the reason that the claim is not put into a company with a much larger capital.

Application for shares to be made to us in the annexed form, and the list will close when the requisite number are subscribed.

MELHADO and CURTIS.

Form of Application for Shares.

To Messrs. Melhado and Curtis, Brokers for Victoria Reef Gold Mining Company (Limited).

I hereby request that you will allot me shares in Victoria Reef Gold Mining Company (Limited), and I agree to accept the same, or any less number that may be allotted to me, to pay all calls, and sign the Deed of Settlement when called upon to do so. Herewith I hand you £ , being application fee of 2s per share.

PROSPECTUS of the GENERAL GRANT GOLD MINING COMPANY, (Limited), Chambers Creek.

Capital, £10,000, in shares of £1 each. Payable—10s on application, and 10s on allotment.

Trustees:
Jas. Campbell, Esq., M.L.A.
Geo. Moore, Esq., J.P.
Broker:
Marshall Bayley, Esq., 144, Pitt-street.

The proprietors, in placing this well known and well proved mine before the public, can confidently say that for the moderation of the terms and for the certainty of a good investment, it will bear favourable comparison with anything that has yet been offered. It adjoins the celebrated Bismark on the south, and has an area half as large again—the General Grant having 183 feet on the line of reef, while the Bismark has only 120. The main shaft is down upwards of 100 feet, and there are now upwards of 100 tons of rich stone at grass ready for crushing. The stone is of the most favourable character, being richly interspersed with fine gold. Trial crushings have yielded at the rate of from 4 to 20 ounces to the ton. Machinery of a first-class character is now being erected in close proximity to the mine, and will be available for crushing in a very short time.

£1000 will be placed to the credit of the mine, which will be more than sufficient to pay all expenses until dividends are paid. So sanguine are the present proprietors of the great value of their property, that they part with only a small portion of their interest, their only object being to gain an enlarged proprietary, properly appointed directors, and efficient management. 3000 shares only are for sale; the remainder are already applied for.

The following report from Mr. Cookson, one of the most experienced miners in the colony, and manager of the adjoining Bismark mine, was written more than a month ago, and was obtained at the request of and for the information of the Sydney proprietors. The report will speak for itself. It may be added that Mr. Cookson is perfectly disinterested, and has no connection whatever with the mine, whilst from his being constantly on the spot, he has a thorough knowledge of it. Referring to it in a letter of more recent date to one of the proprietors, he states, "Claim looking better than ever, can see fine gold all through the stuff now being raised, I think better of the General Grant than ever."

Applications for shares to be made to, and prospectuses obtained from

"Chambers Creek, 16th May, 1872.

"To the Proprietors of the General Grant Gold Mining Company.

"Gentlemen,—Having inspected the General Grant lease and workings, I beg leave to report that their leases being two 2-acre blocks, are next and adjoining Count Bismark Quartz Mining Company (limited) on the south, and that they are on the same line of reef, having struck the vein in their main shaft at about 60 feet deep, where the quartz shows about three feet thick. They have sunk some 36 or 40 feet further on the underlay of the quartz, which averages about 20 inches in thickness; the quartz in appearance is identically the same as the Bismark, and the hanging wall carries the same dip about two feet from the vein. I examined the stone, and found gold very easily. They have about sixty tons in the paddock, and from what I saw, I am convinced it is good stone; looking at the stone of General Grant and Count Bismark, and comparing them with the quartz being raised on the famous Hill End, the most sceptical judge cannot but pronounce them the same in appearance, character, and colour, and as they both carry good gold now it is a reasonable assumption that at a depth they will be very rich, as in this district the quartz improves with depth. They are at present working with two shifts of men pulling the dirt with a whip, and I have no hesitation in saying that they have thousands of tons of quartz between the present bottom and surface ready for stoping. I may conclude by saying the General Grant is a proved claim (having got the reef and gold), and can rank as one of the richest and best mines on this creek.

"I am, Gentlemen,
"Your obedient servant,
"Frederick W. Cookson,
"Mining Manager Count Bismark Quartz Mining Company (Limited), Chambers Creek."

NORTH GARIBALDI REEF, SOLFERINO.

Capital, £6000, in 6000 Shares of £1 each.

Terms—5s on application, 5s on allotment, and the balance in calls of 2s 6d per month.
£500 will be placed to the credit of the Company to cover preliminary and present working expenses.
☞ The Shares will be allotted in the order of application, and in the event of the Company not floating, the deposits will be returned without any deductions.

Solicitors:
Messrs. Rolin and Salter.
Brokers:
Messrs. Fattorini and Co., Bell's-chambers, 175, Pitt-street.

This Company is formed for the purpose of purchasing the above claim, consisting of six men's ground, under the new regulations, which give an area of 300 feet by 600 feet.

The ground is on a gentle slope, which renders the process of carting easy.

The Garibaldi Reef has been struck at a depth of less than thirty feet, and there are now several tons of promising looking stone at grass.

Nearly all the stone which has been tested from this reef, has given enormous yields, some of it going as high as 200 ounces to the ton.

☞ The local papers speak well of the claim.

The brokers refrain from offering any comment on the above. They believe it to be a fair venture, and the price asked by the promoters is very small as compared with many of the adjoining claims on the same line of reef.

Applications for shares to be made to the undersigned, in the usual form.

It is proposed to form this Company for the purpose of developing the resources of a copper-bearing area of FORTY ACRES, situated at Boree Hollow, in the parish of MOLONG, county of Ashburnham, ADJOINING THE RICH CLAIMS held by Messrs. Torpey and Smith, now well known as the PRABOLY property. A lode, clearly defined, and of a width of four feet and upwards, is open to view on the block adjoining (Peabody), and bears ORE of VERY SUPERIOR QUALITY, estimated to yield from 80 to 90 PER CENT. PURE COPPER. This lode enters the Coronation area at a point near the south-east corner of the boundary and, TRAVERSING THE ENTIRE LENGTH (10 chains), passes out to the west of north, the dip or underlay being to the west. The lands in the north, east, and west have been taken up, and there can be NO DOUBT of their immense value.

CAPTAIN HONEY, formerly of the BURRA BURRA (Copper Mines of South Australia), in a letter dated June 11, speaks of THE GREAT AND RICH DISCOVERY of copper near Molong, and says:—"I believe the 40-acre block is THE BEST IN THE LOCALITY; splendid specimens, nearly equal to those exhibited in Sydney (and which I saw here), being obtained yesterday. Prospects are highly encouraging, and I think this will become a most important locality." Writing again on June 18th, he continues:—"They are producing THE MOST MAGNIFICENT COPPER I EVER SAW in the adjoining claim and are putting a VALUE of MANY THOUSANDS OF POUNDS on the property. I believe truly and faithfully that from inspection since I last wrote, the land referred to will prove equally as rich."

These views are FULLY ENDORSED by Mr. WILLIAM HARD, a mining manager of considerable experience, formerly of the Drummond copper mine, and recently chosen to inspect and report upon the Mulloon Copper Mine. He gives it as his UNQUALIFIED OPINION "that, judged by the surface indications, and compared with those on the adjoining rich lands, the PROSPECTS ARE OF THE HIGHEST ORDER, and that the speculative VALUE of the property CAN SCARCELY BE OVER-ESTIMATED."

Captain THOMAS RODDA, writing from Wellington, June 24th, entirely unsolicited, says:—"I hear, after I saw you, you made a good purchase in a copper mine, near Molong. I can speak from what I have seen—THE PLACE IS GOOD."

The HERALD of the 3rd instant contains the following, under the head of mining news:—"According to the district mining report in the Orange paper, the principal excitement in mining during the week has been the reports and specimens from the PEABODY MINE. On Saturday evening some EXTRAORDINARY EXHIBITS were brought down, exceeding all that had hitherto been obtained. They were pronounced by miners of experience to be WONDERFULLY RICH. The proprietors prefer to call it a vein from which the specimens referred to were obtained; but, in the opinion of many, they would NOT BE WRONG if they asserted they were on the ACTUAL LODE. The shaft as it descends develops EVERY INDICATION that was predicted, every change having been noticed that indicates approach to the lode. On Thursday some further specimens were sent down, of EVIDENT RICHNESS, consisting of GREY ORES and GREEN and BLUE CARBONATES, mixed with quartz. A parcel of specimens has been forwarded to Sydney, which, if like those we have seen, will undoubtedly CREATE A FUROR. Another lot has been dressed for a trial smelting." Testimony of this kind can be greatly multiplied, but the foregoing will doubtless be considered sufficient. Every facility is offered for working. Plenty of water may be secured by the construction of a dam at a small outlay, and the country is soft and practicable. Cartage to Sydney would not exceed £6 per ton, and the ores could be carted and smelted at Newcastle for £6 10s per ton.

The Provisional Directors have every confidence in submitting this as a MOST LEGITIMATE UNDERTAKING, believing that INVESTORS will SPEEDILY REAP A RICH RETURN for their outlay.

The SHARE LIST WILL CLOSE as soon as sufficient shares have been applied for, and EARLY APPLICATION is necessary, as a considerable number have already been taken up.

Shareholders will be called together immediately to elect office-bearers, &c., as it is proposed to COMMENCE OPERATIONS WITHOUT DELAY.

Specimens of ore from the Peabody are on view at the broker's offices, where prospectus and forms of application may be had, together with a lithographed plan of the ground.

This Company is formed to work 500 acres of leased land, situated on Cope's Creek and its tributaries. IT IS ONE OF THE EARLIEST SELECTIONS, AND CONSEQUENTLY, THE PICK OF THAT FAMED LOCALITY: POSSESSES ABUNDANCE OF WATER IN THE DRIEST SEASONS, AND HAS A FRONTAGE TO THE WATER OF NEARLY FOUR MILES.

Considerable work has been done on the property; one ton and a-half of ore has already arrived in Sydney, and is now on view at the Exchange; and a large quantity is stacked on the ground, samples of which have been assayed and found to contain seventy per cent. of tin. This tin, together with all the plant, men's huts, tools, &c., will become the property of the company.

The following extract in reference to this property is taken from the INVERELL COURIER of 29th May, 1872:—"One set of boxes were working with excellent results. As much as from one to two cwt. per day has been obtained from the labour of three men. Sluicing operations have been, during the past few weeks, suspended, as the party have been busily engaged cutting a very extensive drain for a tail race, and making other preparations, in order to have all in readiness for a fair start. A dam of much more than ordinary size on the field has been constructed, at the expense of much time and labour. It is found in the gully known as Canning's, and will ensure a plentiful supply of water all the year round. The party expect to be in readiness for sluicing again during this week. A leader, four or five inches in thickness, bearing Tin, has been discovered on the ground."

The property consists of:—
12 Blocks of 20 acres each on Darby's Branch Creek,
3 " " 20 " " Atkinson's Gully.
4 " " 20 " " Curry Sheep Station Creek.
6 Blocks of 20 acres each on Cope's Creek.
All the above creeks possess permanent water.

This mine is situated at Buckinbah, near Wellington, and comprises 240 acres of land held under mineral leases. In the first lease of 80 acres the lode has been opened on the surface, and is traceable throughout a considerable portion of the section; and so satisfactory were the reports of competent men who inspected the property that the proprietary at once applied for an additional 160 acres. The subjoined reports of Mr. James Eddy and Mr. A. C. O'Connor are deemed amply sufficient to establish the mine as a thoroughly genuine and bona-fide investment, with every promise of developing into a rich and profitable copper mine.

It is intimated to the subscribing shareholders that the sum placed to the company's account for carrying on immediate operations at the mine will be sufficient to satisfactorily test the general character and productiveness of the mine; and there is but little doubt, from the thickness of the lode and the high estimate of the value of the ore, that this is a mine of great promise and one that is likely to uphold the reputation of New South Wales as being equally as rich in copper as it is in other minerals.

The proprietary of this property are so satisfied with the prospects of the mine that they have decided to adopt the principle introduced by the Drummond Copper Mining Company, and which gave such general satisfaction to the investors, viz.—"That a deposit of 1s 6d per share be paid on application and a further deposit of 1s 6d on allotment, from the proceeds of which £1800 shall be paid over to the present proprietors, leaving a sufficient balance for exploring and developing the mine; that the subscribers shall meet so soon as the shares are allotted, and shall then decide whether the company shall be at once established in the usual manner, or whether they shall limit their contributions provisionally to the amount of deposit until the mine has been further developed, examined, and reported upon; that in the latter case, the preliminary explorations shall be made under the sole direction of the subscribers, who shall, if dissatisfied with the results, be entitled to withdraw from the venture altogether, on resolution to that effect passed at a meeting of subscribers convened for that purpose; but that on the contrary event, or in case the immediate formation of the company shall have been decided on, 18,000 shares fully paid-up shall be assigned to the proprietors of the land, and a Deed of Settlement shall be forthwith prepared and executed providing for the payment of the balance of subscribed capital by calls not exceeding 1s per month."

Samples of the ore can be inspected, and prospectuses and forms of application to be had, at the Broker's offices, 34, Hunter-street.

As a large number of the shares are already applied for intending applicants are requested to make early application, as the list will soon close.

This Company has been formed to work some of the rich set tin-mining land yet discovered in the neighbourhood of Inverell.

The property consists of 100 acres of land, leased from the Government under the mineral conditions, and situated in the centre of the Newstead Tin Mining Company's land, and adjoining the Karaula Tin Mine, which was lately floated for £46,000.

The quality of this mine will be shown in the fact that four men, with very rude appliances, have in a short space of time raised 7 tons of tin ore, part of which is in Sydney, and will be sold on account of the shareholders in this Company.

The tin produced has yielded by competent assay 74 per cent, and is allowed to be amongst the best tin ore produced in the Inverell district.

Very rich indications of tin-bearing stone and tin in cement have been found on the mine, and large specimens can be seen at the Exchange, Sydney.

The original proprietors having secured this land in the early stage of tin mining, and proved its value by the result produced, claim 12,500 fully paid-up shares and £1000 in cash, for which they will make over the estate to trustees, and give up the tin already raised, which will enable the Company to pay a dividend shortly after it is formed.

Dividends will be paid on all shares alike, and a clause in the deed gives every shareholder the power to abandon his shares after he has paid the first 5s, if he is not anxious to proceed further.

When applications are in for two-thirds of the shares, a meeting of the shareholders will be called to approve the deed and appoint directors.

The Newstead Mine is so well known, that the directors feel no other recommendation is necessary than the fact that this land is in the very centre of the Newstead property.

Applications will be received in the form annexed, and the list will be closed at an early date.

PROSPECTUS of the LORD NELSON GOLD MINING COMPANY, BOOROOK.

This is a 4-acre Lease on the west and adjoining the rich Golconda Lease, about half a mile from the celebrated Nil Desperandum reef. The Golconda are 40 feet down on the reef; gold from the surface reef 21 inches average thickness; 16 to 20 tons stone raised, estimated at least 6 oz. to the ton. A small crushing plant now up, two large plants nearly landed there, and another 10-stamp battery leaving Sydney immediately.

The Golconda reef runs east and west, and it is expected it will be cut in the Lord Nelson at less than 40 feet. It is now offered in 100 shares, £10 each, 60 paid-up shares reserved to proprietory; 50 offered to the public at £2 each on application, and what more is necessary in small calls. From first capital a small charge of £60 is made, for expenses of floating, &c. It is not likely that more than £250 will be required to render this a dividend-paying concern, and is decidedly the most liberal enterprise yet offered.

Applications to be made to
Mr. CHARLES BACON,
Greville's Rooms, Sydney.

PROSPECTUS of the MERRENDEE AND MEROO GROUND SLUICING COMPANY (Limited).

Capital, £8000, in 8000 shares of £1 each.

3000 of which shares to be reserved, fully paid-up, to proprietors, and 5000 are offered to the public.
5s per share to be paid on application, and 10s per share on allotment.
No more money is expected to be required.
From the £3750 thus raised, £2750 will be banked to Company's account for purchase of machinery, and £1000 paid to proprietors, to partially reimburse them for expenses already incurred.

DIVIDENDS EQUAL ON ALL SHARES.

The machinery to remain the property of the subscribing shareholders until they have received the cost of it back in dividends or otherwise; and proprietors to pay all expenses of floating the Company.

This Company is proposed to be formed to sluice 20 acres of very rich alluvial ground, situated on the Meroo River, near Merrendee, and to work both the old and the new bed of the Meroo, and to crush the adjoining reefs.

The proprietors, in addition to the lease, have acquired the right to three separate head races, tail race, and ground for a reservoir. These have been constructed at an expense of about £1500, and the races will give the Company the command of an immense extent of richly-payable ground for future operations.

It has been ascertained from thoroughly qualified engineers that a 20-horse power engine and suitable pumps will be necessary to exhaust the water from the Meroo in ordinary seasons, and raise it to the highest part of the 30 acres, and thus the Company could work both at the same time.

In wet seasons, when the water in the river would be too heavy for the pumps, the races would supply the necessary quantity of water for the sluicing, and the engine would be employed working the quartz-crushing battery solely; and as there are so many rich reefs now opened in the immediate vicinity, the owners of which now have to send their quartz thirty miles for crushing, profitable employment would be found for it; in fact, the claimholders on the adjoining reefs will guarantee to supply the Company's engine with stone at a high price for crushing.

The proprietary of this property are so satisfied with the prospects of the mine that they have decided to adopt the principle introduced by the Drummond Copper Mining Company, and which gave such general satisfaction to the investors, viz.—"That a deposit of 1s 6d per share be paid on application and a further deposit of 1s 6d on allotment, from the proceeds of which £1800 shall be paid over to the present proprietors, leaving a sufficient balance for exploring and developing the mine; that the subscribers shall meet so soon as the shares are allotted, and shall then decide whether the company shall be at once established in the usual manner, or whether they shall limit their contributions provisionally to the amount of deposit until the mine has been further developed, examined, and reported upon; that in the latter case, the preliminary explorations shall be made under the sole direction of the subscribers, who shall, if dissatisfied with the results, be entitled to withdraw from the venture altogether, on resolution to that effect passed at a meeting of subscribers convened for that purpose; but that on the contrary event, or in case the immediate formation of the company shall have been decided on, 18,000 shares fully paid-up shall be assigned to the proprietors of the land, and a Deed of Settlement shall be forthwith prepared and executed providing for the payment of the balance of subscribed capital by calls not exceeding 1s per month."

Samples of the ore can be inspected, and prospectuses and forms of application to be had, at the Broker's offices, 34, Hunter-street.

As a large number of the shares are already applied for intending applicants are requested to make early application, as the list will soon close.

To Mining Speculators, and Others.

MR. M. MOLONY is instructed to sell by auction, on WEDNESDAY next, the 10th instant, in his Rooms, No. 239, George-street North, next the Bank of Australasia,
300 shares in the celebrated claim known as the "King of the Ranges." This is a 5-acre lease under the old regulations, south of the Turon River, on the same line as the "Queen of the Ranges," and the "Poor Man's Friend," and directly adjoins the "Plutus," and is the most valuable claim from Hill End to Chambers Creek; it is also the most profitable and easily worked, as the claim is worked from a tunnel from the start, 300 feet from the surface of the claim; stone has been obtained from the first opening of the ground, which goes from two to four ounces to the ton.
Also,
300 shares in the celebrated claim known as the "Great Republic." The veins from the celebrated claim, the "Queen of the Ranges" dip easterly directly into this claim, one in three; the shaft is 70 feet down and it is fully expected to strike the richest vein of the "Queen of the Ranges" every day.
Also,
4 Promoters' shares in the "General Grant" 5-acre lease on Surface Hill, near Sofala. There are over sixty gold bearing veins running through this ground, many of which have been worked for the last twenty years in a very unskilful manner, merely roofing along the lines of reef. The yield from loose gold alone has been immense, going as high as 30 ounces to the tub; and has, at all times, paid good wages. The present proprietors are working it in a systematic manner, sinking a shaft in a most advantageous position, and are down about 60 feet. It is anticipated that when down a further depth of 50 feet, most of the small veins will meet and form one large and wonderfully rich reef.
Also,
2 Promoters' shares in the "St. Lawrence" 4-acre lease, on same line of reef as "General Grant."
And various other excellent interests.
The Auctioneer's instructions are positively to sell without reserve.
Memo.—Gentlemen having shares to sell at this sale will please observe that the Auctioneer will not offer any but such as are for sale unreservedly.
Terms at sale.
